Ma'am,

That is correct. He has alluded to VPOTUS throughout the process, but has been very cagey in all of his discussions with us. I tried to draw him out on the subject a few weeks ago, but all he would say is that he wanted to affiliate with NOSC St. Louis and then be available to "be assigned to Washington D.C. for work with the National Security Council". We have received nothing more on that front.

(b) (6),

I believe we wrestled with this exact point at the time. Since he was in the IRR at the time, we had no recourse. If he were in the AC, or even RC on active duty, we would have gone after Art 120. But for a Reservist not on orders, or the IRR, we have no authority - it's like holding a civilian accountable. How could/should that have been accounted for in the administrative move from IRR to SELRES?

Mr. (b) (6) the former Missouri Governor and a former Navy SEAL, has successfully re-joined the Navy as a reservist. Yesterday, I was informed that his action to re-join the drilling reserves as an 1105 LCDR, General

Unrestricted Line Officer, is now complete. He intends to affiliate with the Washington D.C. area NOSC. (b) (5)

VCNO, CNP, CNR,

For Information Only

BLUF: We received media queries today from KC Star and McClatchy Newspapers regarding former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) and his status in the Navy. According to the media, (b) (6) is saying he is back in the Navy and "ready to deploy." Initial coverage from KC star included below.

Key Points:

* As a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve, in APR 2019 (b) (6) requested transfer to the selected reserves (SELRES) as an 1105 (General Unrestricted Line) LCDR, and that transfer was approved.

* Transfer to SELRES is an administrative action that does not trigger the "full accession look" of a new accession (i.e. a direct commissioning officer applicant). (b) (6) was only required to complete a physical since his previous one had lapsed over two years, which he completed successfully.

* He will not formally "swear-in" as he never left the United States Navy Reserves. He is currently affiliated with the St. Louis, Missouri NOSC.

* We have coordinated with CNRC PA and provided KC Star the following updated statement: "In April 2019, (b) (6) a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR), requested to transfer his status to the Selected Reserves (SELRES) as a general unrestricted line officer and his transfer was approved. He is currently affiliated with the NOSC in St Louis." They intend to update the story.

MAY 22, 2019 05:00 PM, UPDATED 2 MINUTES AGO

Former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) has told friends and supporters in recent weeks that he plans to deploy with the Navy to the Middle East in the fall and hopes his fourth book will be published later this year.

Earlier this month (b) (6) attended a gathering in Franklin County organized by longtime GOP activist (b) (6) (b) (6) where he shared his short-term plans regarding his return to active Navy service and forthcoming book.

(b) (6) has also shared his plans with others in meetings across the state over the past month, multiple sources told The Kansas City Star.

A Navy official said that as of Wednesday, there was no change to (b) (6) status in his personnel file.

(b) (6) is currently on inactive status with the Standby Reserve, which allows him to retain his commission but not to accrue time served to apply towards retirement. The status comes with no pay and does not make him eligible for promotion.

If he is in the process of applying to return to active status, that information would not be made public until a decision is made on whether or not to allow him to reactivate.

Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, which published (b) (6) previous three books, told The Star it does not have anything new from (b) (6) under contract.

(b) (6) could not immediately be reached for comment.

(b) (6) a Republican and former Navy SEAL, resigned from office a year ago <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212114314.html>> next week, succumbing to an avalanche of scandals and criminal charges - including accusations that he engaged in violent and coercive sexual misconduct <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> during a 2015 affair.

Despite his exit in disgrace from the governor's office, the specter of his possible return to public life looms over Missouri politics.

(b) (6) has been spotted around the state and in Washington, D.C., in recent weeks, meeting with former staff and political operatives.

Most telling is that his still-active gubernatorial campaign spent roughly $15,000 during the first three months of 2019 on staff salaries and reimbursements for travel, meals and other expenses. The campaign also paid nearly $20,000 worth of reimbursement of older travel expenses to (b) (6) a longtime Greitens friend and former communications adviser (b) (6).

Many of his former confidantes told The Star they haven't heard any indication from (b) (6) that he's eyeing a return to politics in 2020.

(b) (6) said the picnic gathering where he mentioned his Navy plans was a private party with personal friends and relatives. She was surprised when (b) (6) agreed to attend, and said the occasion was "absolutely non-political." As far as (b) (6) knows, (b) (6) "is not looking at anything political" in the near future.

But she said there's a faction of grassroots Republican activists who feel (b) (6) was unfairly pushed out and would like to see him run for elective office again.

"I do think that's wishful thinking from people in Missouri," (b) (6) said. "I think there's just rumors all over that people wish he would run, and time will tell...Our election was stolen from us."

(b) (6) managing director of America First MO PAC, said she had heard that (b) (6) was thinking about a run for Senate, possibly for Missouri Sen. Roy Blunt's seat in 2022. She dismissed the idea of a primary challenge to Missouri Gov. Mike Parson in 2020.

(b) (6) "has enemies in Jefferson City that would really work against him. This would be more of clean slate for him," (b) (6) said of a possible Senate run. She said he still has support among grassroots conservatives in the state.

"People think he was run out of Jefferson City and they don't like that," (b) (6) said. "And Blunt's popularity is waning."

As evidence that Blunt could be vulnerable, (b) (6) pointed to the backlash he received from some conservatives
<<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/news/politics-government/congress/article228088259.html>> after he voted to block President Donald Trump's use of emergency powers to build a border wall.

(b) (6) for Missouri, which was created for his 2016 gubernatorial run, filed an amendment with the Missouri Ethics Commission in May 2018 re-focusing its aim on the 2020 GOP primary for governor.

That tactic is not unusual for a dormant committee, as many former elected officials maintain campaign accounts for years after they leave office.

(b) (6) predecessor, spent $85,239 through his campaign committee for about a year before closing it down. The expenses ranged from donations, hotel and catering fees, software and a portrait.

(b) (6) a one-term governor before (b) (6) kept spending through his committee for about five years after leaving office until it wound down in 2014. It spent money on legal fees, public communications, accounting and political donations. It spent $179,657 in those five years, even though

(b) (6) never again sought public office.

Neither (b) (6) or (b) (6) committee spent as much as (b) (6) committee spent in the last quarter alone, when (b) (6) for Missouri reported spending $240,000, mostly on legal fees.

State law requires that candidates only spend campaign cash on campaign matters
<<https://law.justia.com/codes/missouri/2011/titleix/chapter130/section130034>
> . Office holders can spend it on official duties.

(b) (6) who served as director of boards and commissions in the governor's office, began working for (b) (6) for Missouri since January 2018.

Since (b) (6) June resignation, (b) (6) has been paid $5,500 a month and has been reimbursed for around $3,300 worth of mileage, meals, office supplies and other expenses.

(b) (6) said he left his employment with the campaign in February.

The campaign also paid (b) (6) $1,200 on March 1 for "campaign worker compensation, although it is unclear when the services were rendered. (b) (6) who previously served as "advance lead" in the governor's office, was paid another $1,000 for mileage and other expenses.

Beyond the staff spending, (b) (6) for Missouri also disclosed legal expenses to three law firms.

Chalmers Burch & Adams LLC was paid $12,800.

That's the law firm of Michael Adams, the attorney who helped organize (b) (6) nonprofit, A New Missouri Inc., and who continues to serve as its director.

On Tuesday, Adams won the GOP nomination for secretary of state

Clark Hill PLC, a DC law firm, was paid $56,000.

Husch Blackwell LLP was paid $117,000. This is the firm of (b) (6) a former Missouri House speaker who represents A New Missouri and (b) (6) campaign.

If he ever does attempt a return to Missouri politics, the allegations of illegal conduct that brought him down will certainly resurface.

(b) (6) was elected in 2016 on a campaign focused on rooting corruption out of Jefferson City.

He was forced from office a year and a half later under threat of impeachment and further criminal prosecution over a series of scandals that enveloped his administration.

(b) (6) was charged with two felonies in St. Louis County - invasion of privacy and computer tampering.

The first felony charge stemmed from accusations by a woman with whom (b) (6) had an affair in 2015.

The woman said under oath both to prosecutors and a legislative committee considering impeachment <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> that (b) (6) taped her hands to pull-up rings in his basement, blindfolded her, spit water into her mouth, ripped open her shirt, pulled down her pants and took a photo without her consent.

She says he also threatened to make the photos public if she ever told anyone about their encounter.

(b) (6) denied any wrongdoing and the charge was eventually dropped <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212769354.html>> , with the prosecutor citing statutes of limitation and potentially missing evidence.

The second involved allegations that he illegally used a donor list from veterans charity he founded <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article209422724.html>> to jumpstart his political career.

That charge was also dropped as part of a plea deal that forced (b) (6) from office. <<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/latest-news/article212173834.html>>

BLUF: We received media queries today from KC Star and McClatchy Newspapers regarding former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) and his status in the Navy. According to the media, (b) (6) is saying he is back in the Navy and "ready to deploy." Initial coverage from KC star included below.

Key Points:

* As a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve, in APR 2019 (b) (6) requested transfer to the selected reserves (SELRES) as an 1105 (General Unrestricted Line) LCDR, and that transfer was approved.

* Transfer to SELRES is an administrative action that does not trigger the "full accession look" of a new accession (i.e. a direct commissioning officer applicant). (b) (6) was only required to complete a physical since his previous one had lapsed over two years, which he completed successfully.

* He will not formally "swear-in" as he never left the United States Navy Reserves. He is currently affiliated with the St. Louis, Missouri NOSC.

* We have coordinated with CNRC PA and provided KC Star the following updated statement: "In April 2019, (b) (6) a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR), requested to transfer his status to the Selected Reserves (SELRES) as a general unrestricted line officer and his transfer was approved. He is currently affiliated with the NOSC in St Louis." They intend to update the story.

(b) (6) says he's making his return ... to the Navy, sources tell The Star

MAY 22, 2019 05:00 PM, UPDATED 2 MINUTES AGO

Former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) has told friends and supporters in recent weeks that he plans to deploy with the Navy to the Middle East in the fall and hopes his fourth book will be published later this year.

Earlier this month (b) (6) attended a gathering in Franklin County organized by longtime GOP activist (b) (6) (b) (6) where he shared his short-term plans regarding his return to active Navy service and forthcoming book.

(b) (6) has also shared his plans with others in meetings across the state over the past month, multiple sources told The Kansas City Star.

A Navy official said that as of Wednesday, there was no change to (b) (6) status in his personnel file.

(b) (6) is currently on inactive status with the Standby Reserve, which allows him to retain his commission but not to accrue time served to apply towards retirement. The status comes with no pay and does not make him eligible for promotion.

If he is in the process of applying to return to active status, that information would not be made public until a decision is made on whether or not to allow him to reactivate.

Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, which published (b) (6) previous three books, told The Star it does not have anything new from (b) (6) under contract.

(b) (6) could not immediately be reached for comment.

(b) (6) a Republican and former Navy SEAL, resigned from office a year ago <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212114314.html>> next week, succumbing to an avalanche of scandals and criminal charges - including accusations that he engaged in violent and coercive sexual misconduct <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> during a 2015 affair.

Despite his exit in disgrace from the governor's office, the specter of his possible return to public life looms over Missouri politics.

(b) (6) has been spotted around the state and in Washington, D.C., in recent weeks, meeting with former staff and political operatives.

Most telling is that his still-active gubernatorial campaign spent roughly $15,000 during the first three months of 2019 on staff salaries and reimbursements for travel, meals and other expenses. The campaign also paid nearly $20,000 worth of reimbursement of older travel expenses to (b) (6) a longtime (b) (6) friend and former communications adviser.

Many of his former confidantes told The Star they haven't heard any indication from (b) (6) that he's eyeing a return to politics in 2020.

(b) (6) said the picnic gathering where he mentioned his Navy plans was a private party with personal friends and relatives. She was surprised when (b) (6) agreed to attend, and said the occasion was "absolutely non-political." As far as (b) (6) knows, (b) (6) "is not looking at anything political" in the near future.

But she said there's a faction of grassroots Republican activists who feel (b) (6) was unfairly pushed out and would like to see him run for elective office again.

"I do think that's wishful thinking from people in Missouri," (b) (6) said. "I think there's just rumors all over that people wish he would run, and time will tell...Our election was stolen from us."

(b) (6) managing director of America First MO PAC, said she had heard that (b) (6) was thinking about a run for Senate, possibly for Missouri Sen. Roy Blunt's seat in 2022. She dismissed the idea of a primary challenge to Missouri Gov. Mike Parson in 2020.

(b) (6) "has enemies in Jefferson City that would really work against him. This would be more of clean slate for him," (b) (6) said of a possible Senate run. She said he still has support among grassroots conservatives in the state.

"People think he was run out of Jefferson City and they don't like that," (b) (6) said. "And Blunt's popularity is waning."

As evidence that Blunt could be vulnerable, (b) (6) pointed to the backlash he received from some conservatives
<<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/news/politics-government/congress/article228088259.html>> after he voted to block President Donald Trump's use of emergency powers to build a border wall.

(b) (6) for Missouri, which was created for his 2016 gubernatorial run, filed an amendment with the Missouri Ethics Commission in May 2018 re-focusing its aim on the 2020 GOP primary for governor.

That tactic is not unusual for a dormant committee, as many former elected officials maintain campaign accounts for years after they leave office.

(b) (6) predecessor, spent $85,239 through his campaign committee for about a year before closing it down. The expenses ranged from donations, hotel and catering fees, software and a portrait.

(b) (6) a one-term governor before (b) (6) kept spending through his committee for about five years after leaving office until it wound down in 2014. It spent money on legal fees, public communications, accounting and political donations. It spent $179,657 in those five years, even though Blunt never again sought public office.

Neither Blunt's or (b) (6) committee spent as much as (b) (6) committee spent in the last quarter alone, when (b) (6) for Missouri reported spending $240,000, mostly on legal fees.

State law requires that candidates only spend campaign cash on campaign matters

<<https://law.justia.com/codes/missouri/2011/titleix/chapter130/section130034>> . Office holders can spend it on official duties.

(b) (6) who served as director of boards and commissions in the governor's office, began working for (b) (6) for Missouri since January 2018.

Since (b) (6) June resignation, (b) (6) has been paid $5,500 a month and has been reimbursed for around $3,300 worth of mileage, meals, office supplies and other expenses.

(b) (6) said he left his employment with the campaign in February.

The campaign also paid (b) (6) (b) (6) $1,200 on March 1 for "campaign worker compensation, although it is unclear when the services were rendered.

(b) (6) who previously served as "advance lead" in the governor's office, was paid another $1,000 for mileage and other expenses.

Beyond the staff spending, (b) (6) for Missouri also disclosed legal expenses to three law firms.

Chalmers Burch & Adams LLC was paid $12,800.

That's the law firm of Michael Adams, the attorney who helped organize (b) (6) nonprofit, A New Missouri Inc., and who continues to serve as its director.

On Tuesday, Adams won the GOP nomination for secretary of state

Clark Hill PLC, a DC law firm, was paid $56,000.

Husch Blackwell LLP was paid $117,000. This is the firm of (b) (6) a former Missouri House speaker who represents A New Missouri and

(b) (6) campaign.

If he ever does attempt a return to Missouri politics, the allegations of illegal conduct that brought him down will certainly resurface.

(b) (6) was elected in 2016 on a campaign focused on rooting corruption out of Jefferson City.

He was forced from office a year and a half later under threat of impeachment and further criminal prosecution over a series of scandals that enveloped his administration.

(b) (6) was charged with two felonies in St. Louis County - invasion of privacy and computer tampering.

The first felony charge stemmed from accusations by a woman with whom (b) (6) had an affair in 2015.

The woman said under oath both to prosecutors and a legislative committee considering impeachment <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> that (b) (6) taped her hands to pull-up rings in his basement, blindfolded her, spit water into her mouth, ripped open her shirt, pulled down her pants and took a photo without her consent.

She says he also threatened to make the photos public if she ever told anyone about their encounter.

(b) (6) denied any wrongdoing and the charge was eventually dropped <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212769354.html>> , with the prosecutor citing statutes of limitation and potentially missing evidence.

The second involved allegations that he illegally used a donor list from veterans charity he founded <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article209422724.html>> to jumpstart his political career.

That charge was also dropped as part of a plea deal that forced (b) (6) from office. <<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/latest-news/article212173834.html>>

BLUF: We received media queries today from KC Star and McClatchy Newspapers regarding former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) and his status in the Navy. According to the media, (b) (6) is saying he is back in the Navy and "ready to deploy." Initial coverage from KC star included below.

Key Points:

* As a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve, in APR 2019 (b) (6) requested transfer to the selected reserves (SELRES) as an 1105 (General Unrestricted Line) LCDR, and that transfer was approved.

* Transfer to SELRES is an administrative action that does not trigger the "full accession look" of a new accession (i.e. a direct commissioning officer applicant). (b) (6) was only required to complete a physical since his previous one had lapsed over two years, which he completed successfully.

* He will not formally "swear-in" as he never left the United States Navy Reserves. He is currently affiliated with the St. Louis, Missouri NOSC.

* We have coordinated with CNRC PA and provided KC Star the following updated statement: "In April 2019, (b) (6) a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR), requested to transfer his status to the Selected Reserves (SELRES) as a general unrestricted line officer and his transfer was approved. He is currently affiliated with the NOSC in St Louis." They intend to update the story.

(b) (6) says he's making his return ... to the Navy, sources tell The Star

MAY 22, 2019 05:00 PM, UPDATED 2 MINUTES AGO

Former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) has told friends and supporters in recent weeks that he plans to deploy with the Navy to the Middle East in the fall and hopes his fourth book will be published later this year.

Earlier this month (b) (6) attended a gathering in Franklin County organized by longtime GOP activist (b) (6) (b) (6) where he shared his short-term plans regarding his return to active Navy service and forthcoming book.

(b) (6) has also shared his plans with others in meetings across the state over the past month, multiple sources told The Kansas City Star.

A Navy official said that as of Wednesday, there was no change to (b) (6) status in his personnel file.

(b) (6) is currently on inactive status with the Standby Reserve, which allows him to retain his commission but not to accrue time served to apply towards retirement. The status comes with no pay and does not make him eligible for promotion.

If he is in the process of applying to return to active status, that information would not be made public until a decision is made on whether or not to allow him to reactivate.

Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, which published (b) (6) previous three books, told The Star it does not have anything new from (b) (6) under contract.

(b) (6) could not immediately be reached for comment.

(b) (6) a Republican and former Navy SEAL, resigned from office a year ago <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212114314.html>> next week, succumbing to an avalanche of scandals and criminal charges - including accusations that he engaged in violent and coercive sexual misconduct <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> during a 2015 affair.

Despite his exit in disgrace from the governor's office, the specter of his possible return to public life looms over Missouri politics.

(b) (6) has been spotted around the state and in Washington, D.C., in recent weeks, meeting with former staff and political operatives.

Most telling is that his still-active gubernatorial campaign spent roughly $15,000 during the first three months of 2019 on staff salaries and reimbursements for travel, meals and other expenses. The campaign also paid nearly $20,000 worth of reimbursement of older travel expenses to (b) (6) a longtime (b) (6) friend and former communications adviser.

Many of his former confidantes told The Star they haven't heard any indication from (b) (6) that he's eyeing a return to politics in 2020.

(b) (6) said the picnic gathering where he mentioned his Navy plans was a private party with personal friends and relatives. She was surprised when (b) (6) agreed to attend, and said the occasion was "absolutely non-political." As far as (b) (6) knows, (b) (6) "is not looking at anything political" in the near future.

But she said there's a faction of grassroots Republican activists who feel (b) (6) was unfairly pushed out and would like to see him run for elective office again.

"I do think that's wishful thinking from people in Missouri," (b) (6) said. "I think there's just rumors all over that people wish he would run, and time will tell...Our election was stolen from us."

(b) (6) managing director of America First MO PAC, said she had heard that (b) (6) was thinking about a run for Senate, possibly for Missouri Sen. Roy Blunt's seat in 2022. She dismissed the idea of a primary challenge to Missouri Gov. Mike Parson in 2020.

(b) (6) "has enemies in Jefferson City that would really work against him. This would be more of clean slate for him," (b) (6) said of a possible Senate run. She said he still has support among grassroots conservatives in the state.

"People think he was run out of Jefferson City and they don't like that," (b) (6) said. "And Blunt's popularity is waning."

As evidence that Blunt could be vulnerable, (b) (6) pointed to the backlash he received from some conservatives
<<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/news/politics-government/congress/article228088259.html>> after he voted to block President Donald Trump's use of emergency powers to build a border wall.

(b) (6) for Missouri, which was created for his 2016 gubernatorial run, filed an amendment with the Missouri Ethics Commission in May 2018 re-focusing its aim on the 2020 GOP primary for governor.

That tactic is not unusual for a dormant committee, as many former elected officials maintain campaign accounts for years after they leave office.

(b) (6) predecessor, spent $85,239 through his campaign committee for about a year before closing it down. The expenses ranged from donations, hotel and catering fees, software and a portrait.

(b) (6) a one-term governor before (b) (6) kept spending through his committee for about five years after leaving office until it wound down in 2014. It spent money on legal fees, public communications, accounting and political donations. It spent $179,657 in those five years, even though Blunt never again sought public office.

Neither Blunt's or (b) (6) committee spent as much as (b) (6) committee spent in the last quarter alone, when (b) (6) for Missouri reported spending $240,000, mostly on legal fees.

State law requires that candidates only spend campaign cash on campaign matters

<<https://law.justia.com/codes/missouri/2011/titleix/chapter130/section130034> /> . Office holders can spend it on official duties.

(b) (6) who served as director of boards and commissions in the governor's office, began working for (b) (6) for Missouri since January 2018.

Since (b) (6) June resignation, (b) (6) has been paid $5,500 a month and has been reimbursed for around $3,300 worth of mileage, meals, office supplies and other expenses.

(b) (6) said he left his employment with the campaign in February.

The campaign also paid (b) (6) (b) (6) $1,200 on March 1 for "campaign worker compensation, although it is unclear when the services were rendered.

(b) (6) who previously served as "advance lead" in the governor's office, was paid another $1,000 for mileage and other expenses.

Beyond the staff spending, (b) (6) for Missouri also disclosed legal expenses to three law firms.

Chalmers Burch & Adams LLC was paid $12,800.

That's the law firm of Michael Adams, the attorney who helped organize (b) (6) nonprofit, A New Missouri Inc., and who continues to serve as its director.

On Tuesday, Adams won the GOP nomination for secretary of state <<https://www.courier-journal.com/story/news/politics/elections/kentucky/2019/05/21/kentucky-primary-election-may-2019-secretary-of-state-winners/3667307002/>> in Kentucky. He did not respond to a request for comment by The Star.

Clark Hill PLC, a DC law firm, was paid $56,000.

Husch Blackwell LLP was paid $117,000. This is the firm of (b) (6) a former Missouri House speaker who represents A New Missouri and (b) (6) campaign.

If he ever does attempt a return to Missouri politics, the allegations of illegal conduct that brought him down will certainly resurface.

(b) (6) was elected in 2016 on a campaign focused on rooting corruption out of Jefferson City.

He was forced from office a year and a half later under threat of impeachment and further criminal prosecution over a series of scandals that enveloped his administration.

(b) (6) was charged with two felonies in St. Louis County - invasion of privacy and computer tampering.

The first felony charge stemmed from accusations by a woman with whom (b) (6) had an affair in 2015.

The woman said under oath both to prosecutors and a legislative committee considering impeachment <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> that (b) (6) taped her hands to pull-up rings in his basement, blindfolded her, spit water into her mouth, ripped open her shirt, pulled down her pants and took a photo without her consent.

She says he also threatened to make the photos public if she ever told anyone about their encounter.

(b) (6) denied any wrongdoing and the charge was eventually dropped <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212769354.html>> , with the prosecutor citing statutes of limitation and potentially missing evidence.

The second involved allegations that he illegally used a donor list from veterans charity he founded <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article209422724.html>> to jumpstart his political career.

That charge was also dropped as part of a plea deal that forced (b) (6) from office. <<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/latest-news/article212173834.html>>

Former Gov. (b) (6) returns to active duty status, could deploy with Navy

By (b) (6) KSDK | May 23, 2019

<https://www.bizjournals.com/stlouis/news/2019/05/23/former-gov-greitens-returns-to-active-duty-status.html>

Former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) who resigned last June amid controversy over an extramarital affair, is returning to active duty status with the Navy.

"In April 2019, (b) (6) ... requested to transfer his status to the Selected Reserves," said Lt. Cmdr. (b) (6) a Navy Recruiting Command spokeswoman. She said (b) (6) request was approved, making him eligible to deploy to combat zones.

The Navy said (b) (6) is considered a general unrestricted line officer, which means he can command, among other units, SEAL teams. (b) (6) is a former Navy SEAL who completed four tours of duty, including to Iraq and Afghanistan.

The Kansas City Star, which first reported (b) (6) plans, said he has told friends and supporters in recent weeks that he plans to deploy with the Navy to the Middle East in the fall. The Navy did not immediately confirm those reports.

Voters elected (b) (6) in November 2016. Less than two years later, (b) (6) admitted to an extramarital affair prior to running for governor, but he denied any criminal wrongdoing.

A grand jury in St. Louis indicted (b) (6) on felony invasion of privacy charges, but those charges were later dropped.

(b) (6) resigned from office after making a deal with St. Louis circuit attorney Kimberly Gardner that stipulated her office would drop another felony charge against him for allegedly using the mailing list of The Mission Continues, a nonprofit organization (b) (6) founded, during his campaign for governor.

Sea services look for ways to tailor training to individual service members

By Jared Serbu, Federal News Network | May 23, 2019

<https://federalnewsnetwork.com/on-dod/2019/05/sea-services-look-for-ways-to-tailor-training-to-individual-service-members/>

The military's sea services say they are on the cusp of a revolution in how they train their personnel.

The Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard are each approaching the problem from slightly different angles, but they agree on at least a few things: The standard model of point-in-time, and schoolhouse-based training is not always the best approach. Different people learn at different paces, and modern technology offers extremely promising ways to make military training more effective.

Computer-based training is certainly not a new concept, and the Navy has no interest in repeating some of the past mistakes it's made in attempting to replace vital hands-on qualifications with CBT, said Rear Adm. John Nowell, the service's director of military personnel plans and policy.

But technology can certainly help in tailoring some of its training on an individual basis, and delivering it exactly when it's needed.

"The way we've been doing businesses, we give folks a lot of training before they go to their first ship, but they only use about half of that," he said during a panel discussion at the annual Sea Air Space conference. "About half of them stay in, and we have to give them the training all over again because the skills have atrophied, the technology has changed, or they didn't use it in their first tour. It makes no sense."

So the Navy has moved to a concept it calls "block learning" under the banner of a broader initiative called "Ready, Relevant Learning." It borrows from a continuous learning model already used in the service's nuclear and special operations communities, and the Navy had adopted the practice for 54 of its ratings by the end of last year, Nowell said.

"The idea was to figure out where in their career sailors needed the training, and therefore we cut some of the initial entry training down, and in some cases, we added it," he said. "Now we're into how we might deliver it differently – content modernization. We know that they learn better by not having Ferris Bueller's professor go through PowerPoint slides. So can they do it better on a device? Do they do it better with an avatar, for instance, like we do with our LCS engine room trainer in San Diego? We're already doing some of this virtually."

More flexible training opportunities

The content modernization effort is likely to mean servicemembers will have more opportunities to conduct training on schedules that suit their personal lives, and in many cases, on their own devices. The Navy is in the midst of a major IT modernization effort that is moving many of its training resources from behind Common Access Card-protected firewalls and exposing personnel and training systems to sailors' personal devices.

The Marines are pursuing a similar line of thinking, said Brig. Gen. Calvert Worth, the commander of Marine Corps Training Command. He said the service aims to create a "persistent learning environment" that does not begin and end at the doors of a traditional schoolhouse.

"We need to flip the classroom so that the student becomes the center of that universe," he said. "It needs to be dynamic, enabled by technology, allow a student to learn at a pace that they can learn at. You can board any college campus and the students can access the Internet from wherever they are on campus: if they want to learn, they can learn. If they want to move more rapidly through the information and the technical curricula, than they can do that at their pace. We should encourage that. That requires a shift, a revolutionary shift in how we've delivered training and education."

At the same time, the services say they're trying to take a measured approach so that they don't attempt to replace training that truly does require hands-on experience with computer-based models. Worth said the Marine Corps has conducted several studies over the past two years to help determine where technology can help and where it can't.

"There is no substitute for carrying a heavy load and being in the field. There is no substitute for knowing exactly how much torque needs to be applied to a bolt when you're repairing an engine," he said. "Simulations can go so far, so what we're looking at is the blend, the integration of simulations, where it matters, where can we speed learning? In Pensacola, where we train our aviation maintainers, they are using equipment and engine simulations to allow an instructor from a control center to train 30 mechanics on a piece of equipment. He can then introduce 30 different fails or errors into the system while the Marines are working on the simulators. He can train them at a rate and in a different way that plays to their strengths, mitigates their weaknesses and allows them to get the sets and reps required so that when they do go to the hangar and they work on an actual piece of gear, then they are that much more effective."

Major cost savings unlikely

Rear Adm. Brian Penoyer, the commander of Coast Guard Force Readiness Command, said his service began moving toward a similar, more distributed and performance-based training model many years ago. The moves were motivated partly by constraints associated with the Coast Guard's relatively small size and budget.

But however beneficial it might be to diversify military training with more tailored, non-classroom-based methodologies, he cautioned the approach is unlikely to be a major source of financial savings for the military services.

“It doesn’t save you instructional staff. In fact, there’s countless study after study that shows you need more staff, but different staff. That’s one of the reasons this is a revolution,” he said. “And the revolution presents several challenges to us. One is this question of what is that instructional workforce being trained to do? Who are you picking? As we move to this tailored training that knows who you are and is responsive to what operators are seeing in the field, it’s going to require us to completely revisit the industrial processing plant that we call training. You might drop into modular weeks while the course is in mid-progress, and we may have revolving graduation on a weekly or daily basis. Everything about that is exponentially hard to execute at a training center, and it’s not going to get easier unless we start from the principle that we’re going to operate our training with agile methodologies.”

Surface Combat Systems Training Community Welcomes New Commanding Officer

By (b) (6) Center for Surface Combat Systems Public Affairs | May 22, 2019
https://www.navy.mil/submit/display.asp?story_id=109667

DAHLGREN, Va. (NNS) -- Capt. (b) (6) turned over command to Capt. (b) (6) during the Center for Surface Combat Systems (CSCS) change of command ceremony onboard Naval Support Facility Dahlgren, Va., May 17.

(b) (6), you and your team have developed long-term strategies for surface combat systems training,” said Vice Adm. Richard Brown, commander, Naval Surface Forces, who served as the presiding officer and guest speaker for the event. “You train our Sailors to be warriors and as a result, each day, enhance our surface forces.”

(b) (6) acknowledged that CSCS was one of the most challenging and rewarding assignments of his naval career.

“What we do at CSCS directly impacts the fleet,” he said. “We train over 38,000 Sailors annually across 15 geographically dispersed learning sites. Each Sailor is provided with the knowledge and skills he or she needs to execute the Navy’s mission so that we remain the best maritime warfighting force in the world.”

(b) (6) was presented his second Legion of Merit for his numerous training initiatives, including developing and implementing long term strategies for each of his Surface Warfare Enterprise Combat Systems and Deck Mission Area Chair designated warfare areas; leading the development and installation of the Surface Training Advanced Virtual Environment (STAVE) – Combat Systems (CS) effort, which provides multi-purpose reconfigurable training systems to support both Officer and Enlisted tactical and technical training; guiding the CSCS domain through the initial and follow-on efforts for Block Learning and Ready, Relevant Learning (RRL), which resulted in the execution of the RRL-compliant training continuum for the sonar technician surface (STG) rating that already has increased fleet knowledge, readiness, and manning and will also enable the operations specialist rating to meet the goal of being the first rating to achieve RRL status under the advanced development construct in fiscal year 2019; and spearheading the development of the Combined Integrated Air and Missile Defense (IAMD) / Anti-Submarine Warfare (ASW) Trainer (CIAT), which delivers tactical watchstanders a state-of-the art training lab to detect, control, and engage simulated modern threats in challenging environments.

Brown also commented on the future of CSCS under new leadership.

"I value command over everything else and with command, comes huge accountability and trust," he said. "(b) (6)", you have the right energy, drive, and enthusiasm for this job and I think you will embrace your duty as commanding officer and CSCS will continue to be a great contributor to surface combat systems training."

Most recently, (b) (6) served as the commanding officer for USS Monterey (CG 61). Before Monterey, he served as both the fleet liaison and chief of staff for the Missile Defense Agency, Aegis Ballistic Missile Defense Program Executive Office, which is across the street from CSCS.

"After commanding a ship, there was no other job more relevant to the fleet that I could think of than here at the helm of CSCS," he explained. "Since I arrived at CSCS, I have witnessed a staff of military and civilians who work together to achieve critical goals on a daily basis. I am looking forward to becoming part of this global organization and continuing to plot a course for training the surface Navy's warfighters."

(b) (6), who will assume duties as an instructor at the Joint Forces Staff College in Norfolk, Va., thanked his staff for supporting the CSCS mission.

"Each and every day, CSCS develops and delivers surface ship combat systems training to achieve surface warfare superiority," he said. "CSCS is the leader in the training realm because of you. I am humbled to have served with you all. Thank you for your drive, determination, passion for excellence, and most importantly, your dedication to the future of our Sailors."

CSCS headquarters' staff oversees 14 learning sites and detachments located throughout the continental United States, Hawaii, and Japan and manages and operates a Naval Education and Training Command (NETC) training division in Rota, Spain. CSCS provides over 538 courses, awards 114 different Navy Enlisted Classifications (NECs), and trains over 38,000 Sailors a year. CSCS delivers specialized training for Officer and Enlisted Sailors required to tactically operate, maintain, and employ shipboard and shore-based weapons, sensors, and command and control systems utilized in today's Navy.

CIWT Det. Fort Gordon Pays Tribute to the Fallen

By Cryptologic Technician (Collection) 1st Class (b) (6) (b) (6), Center for Information Warfare Training Det. Fort Gordon | May 22, 2019

<https://www.dvidshub.net/news/323514/ciwt-det-fort-gordon-pays-tribute-fallen>

FORT GORDON, Ga. -- Sailors from the Center for Information Warfare Training (CIWT) Det. Fort Gordon took a break from their busy class schedules, May 22, to pay tribute and honor the Sailors and Marines who have paid the ultimate sacrifice fighting for our country in the Middle East since 9/11.

Each year, the Marine Corps Det. at Fort Gordon organizes the "Tribute to the Fallen" run that continues 24 hours a day for 10 days. Runners travel the 3-mile trail around Barton Field carrying 21 rounds of ammunition and wearing three sets of dog tags, one for each mile, that represents three fallen service members. On the final day, various units from all military branches stationed at Fort Gordon complete the run together, and the 21 rounds are handed off to the firing squad which renders a 21-gun salute.

"Going into Memorial Day, it is important that we take the time to reflect and remember all those who have paid the ultimate sacrifice while serving our nation," said Master Chief Electronics Technician (b) (6), CIWT Det. Fort Gordon's senior enlisted leader. "This unique memorial run afforded us the opportunity to pay tribute to over 1,500 Marines and Navy Corpsman who selflessly gave their lives in service to our country since the beginning of Operation Enduring Freedom."

As a training location for CIWT, CIWT Det. Fort Gordon delivers trained information warfare professionals to the Navy and joint services, enabling optimal performance of information warfare across the full spectrum of military operations. CIWT Det. Submarine Learning Center Supply Supervisor recognized as Civilian of the Year

http://www.dolphin-news.com/news/submarine-learning-center-supply-supervisor-recognized-as-civilian-of-the/article_2f7aa225-d6b9-5e6d-8e84-62bf293a27a8.html

GROTON, Conn.- Procuring, tracking and receiving supplies is an integral part of any business or organization.

For Submarine Learning Center (SLC) onboard Naval Submarine Base (SUBASE) New London, (b) (6) is the supply guru that keeps SLC's purchasing program on track.

"I oversee everything that we purchase," said (b) (6) supervisor, SLC Supply Department. "I'm also the APC [Agency Program Coordinator] which is the coordinator for the purchase card. I make sure that we follow the rules and regulations. "

(b) (6) who has been working onboard the base since 2008, is also in charge of training local supply technicians as well as personnel in Kings Bay, Georgia; Pearl Harbor, Hawaii; and Bangor, Washington.

"I supervise those supply [technicians] and they take care of all the training needs for their sites," said (b) (6) "I come in and support, I guide them, lead them, I take on a lot of the hard issues that they deal with because it takes away time from their job."

(b) (6) added he also investigates any problems his technicians come across and helps find solutions for them.

A native of Lake Charles, Louisiana, (b) (6) is an ordained minister who also served 20 years in the military as a Navy Storekeeper. He said being a preacher and his background as a former storekeeper has not only helped him with his current job as the SLC Supply Department supervisor, but both roles have also helped him learn how to interact with people.

"Being a leader in the Navy at an early age that helped me become a leader in the church because I knew certain aspects of leadership, certain characteristics of people," said (b) (6) "Being a minister I have to have a certain type of character and so I practice to treat people with respect, both at the job and when I'm out of the job."

Helping people is one aspect of his current job (b) (6) said he likes the most.

"I think my best asset is my customer service because I like to leave my customers happy and satisfied," said (b) (6) "I go the extra mile to help them out."

He added that if a person does not know something, he tries to show them the right way to do it.

"I go the extra mile and that's what I love the best about the job, that I get an opportunity to work with people and do my best for them," said (b) (6)

(b) (6) passion for helping others and love of his job is what also led his command to select him as the 2018 Civilian of the Year.

His command described him as a "highly motivated and positive employee who does all he can to ensure great customer service and exudes a 'can-do' attitude."

(b) (6) also procured, tracked and coordinated shipments for more than 600 Navy stock purchases for SLC increasing the command's overall training capabilities for its personnel.

When he found out he was selected as the SLC Civilian of the Year, (b) (6) said he was at a loss for words.

"I was extremely shocked. I've never won anything as a civilian in almost 11 years so that's why it shocked me," said (b) (6)

(b) (6) added that he's grateful for the people he works and has a great team.

"I've been places where it didn't feel like home and maybe a tough place to work but my time here has been great," said (b) (6) "The people I work with are great. To me we're like a family and I think the best part of my job is working with the people I work with. "

The SLC is accountable for all undersea curricula, training delivery methodologies, and for developing and maintaining professional development continuums for all undersea warfare officers and ratings to include Electronics Technician (communications and navigation), Fire Control Technician, Sonar Technician, Machinist's Mate (auxiliary and weapons), Missile Technician and all nuclear training ratings.

Are 3 brothers ready to serve their country in the military? Yes, sir!

By (b) (6) CatholicPhilly.com | May 22, 2019

<http://catholicphilly.com/2019/05/news/profile/are-3-brothers-ready-to-serve-their-country-in-the-military-yes-sir/>

Is there such a thing as service to country being part of one's DNA?

That certainly seems to be the case of the Crossfield family who are members of St. Cecilia Parish in Philadelphia's Fox Chase section. Triplets (b) (6) are all graduating from Archbishop Ryan High School this spring and entering programs toward possible careers in the military.

(b) (6) been accepted into the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis; (b) (6) is headed for the U.S. Military Academy at West Point and (b) (6) will follow the example of their two older brothers through a full Navy ROTC scholarship at Penn State University. (b) (6) is on active duty with the Navy, while (b) (6) is still in the Penn State ROTC program.

Through generations tracing back to their great-grandfathers and grandfathers, service to country by the Crossfield family includes World War I, World War II and the Korean War, according to Jim, the eldest of the triplets (by minutes). At Annapolis his planned course of study will be something his ancestors never heard about: aerospace engineering.

"I plan to spend a lot of time in the Navy," he said. "I have always wanted to give back to hold up the Constitution, to be part of something bigger than myself. I give credit to my school and to my family to make me the person I am today."

Actually getting an appointment to one of the service academies takes a lot more than a high score on a test, although all three brothers are members of the National Honor Society. Candidates must be well-rounded both intellectually and physically.

For example (b) (6) wrestled, played soccer and baseball, and was a member of the Future Engineers Club.

"We were all involved in community service at St. Cecilia," he said.

(b) (6), who is headed for the Point, has already visited and shadowed a cadet and he is mentally already there to the point that he addresses lowly members of the fourth estate as "sir."

"I really liked it there and can see myself as part of it," he said. "I'm not sure what my MOS (Military Occupation Specialty) will be, infantry or artillery."

(b) (6) will enter with a class of 1,500 plebes knowing perhaps 1,200 will stay the course and graduate as second lieutenants, but he is determined to be among them.

At Archbishop (b) (6) he's been a school ambassador, a member of Athletes Helping Athletes, played ice hockey and soccer, and is president of the American Heroes Club, a group he co-founded that honors those who have served their country in the military.

"I know that some people don't realize all that we have comes at a cost," he said. "I just want to do something to give back to the country I love so much and be part of something bigger than myself. Right now I'm thinking about a career in the service."

While his parents are understandably proud of what their sons are doing, (b) (6) emphasizes it is the brothers' own decision.

"Our parents made clear to us that if this is something that you don't want to do, don't worry about it, we won't persuade you."

Nevertheless, without persuasion there is the matter of family example. "My dad was a first responder after 9/11 trying to make a difference," Robert said.

(b) (6) is following the path of their older brothers by attending Penn State on a Navy ROTC scholarship and majoring in nuclear engineering.

"My grandpop was in the Navy, so that's where I got the idea," he said. "My dad was in the Air Force and my older brothers were in ROTC, one for the Navy, the other for the Marines, and they just supported us."

At (b) (6) wrestled, played soccer and was an ambassador as well as a member of the American Heroes Club. Right now he expects after ROTC he will serve at least five years on active duty and could make a career of it.

"I want to do surface warfare on a ship," he said, "but we'll see as I move on." Regardless of his future role in the Navy, his parents "know how important it is for me," he said.

Clearly the most important support for the three brothers as well as for their older brothers has been that encouragement from home.

Their father, (b) (6), followed his four year-military service in England and North Dakota by joining the Philadelphia Fire Department, where he has just finished his 34th year.

You don't have to be in active military service to be in harm's way, and he has done that willingly over these many years, perhaps most dramatically when he served among the first responders who went to New York after the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks.

"We spent nine days on what turned out to be a recovery effort, not a rescue effort," (b) (6) said. "I came back with an empty heart."

He may also have come back with some lasting after effects because of exposure to potentially deadly fumes during that time working in the smoldering ruins. Not every hero is wearing a military uniform. Nevertheless (b) (6) is enormously proud of his children.

"They are respectful, they don't take things for granted, they have been raised to respect what they have, earn what they have and have pride in their family tracing back to the grandparents and great-grandparents," he said. "I'm very proud of their decision."

Army Beginning to See Payoff from New Recruiting Strategy

By Matthew Cox, Military.com | May 22, 2019

<https://www.military.com/daily-news/2019/05/22/army-beginning-see-payoff-new-recruiting-strategy.html>

Army Recruiting Command officials said recently that the service is starting to see results from the new recruiting strategy it launched last year.

In October, Army senior leaders pledged to increase recruiting efforts in 22 major cities after the service missed its recruiting goal for the first time since 2005, falling roughly 6,500 recruits short.

The effort has involved senior leaders meeting with city officials, as well as adding hundreds more recruiters to beef up the service's recruiting force -- on the ground and across social media.

Recruiting is now up in 18 of the 22 focus cities, according to a recent Army news release offering Army Recruiting Command (USAREC) figures for April.

"Recruiting is up 27 percent in Minneapolis over this time last year, New York City has improved 19 percent and Baltimore is up 17 percent," according to the release.

Until this year, recruiting success typically seen in the rural South was not shared by the big cities, the release states.

"We're trying to bring a lot of balance to our recruiting effort and focus in on the largest metropolitan areas in the country," Under Secretary of the Army Ryan McCarthy said in the release, adding that the effort involves meeting with city officials and educators to help build new relationships.

At a Baltimore meeting, officials opened up all 43 of the city's recreation centers to recruiters, the release states.

"It was a great meeting because it opened doors," Col. (b) (6), commander of the Baltimore Recruiting Battalion, said in the release.

In addition to playing basketball with youth, recruiters uploaded the Army's "March2Success" software on computers at the centers, so students could study there for college boards and other entrance exams, the release states.

"It's a tool to teach you how to take tests. ... It focuses on your weaknesses," Iden said in the release.

In addition to increasing its recruiting force by 770 recruiters, the Army has added virtual recruiting teams (VRTs) to each of its 44 recruiting battalions to reach out to potential recruits through social media.

The teams consist of three to six soldiers who work in all types of social media. The VRTs are currently manned at about 80 percent, but they will reach 100 percent by this summer, according to the release.

These VRTs are "force multipliers" for recruiters, Col. (b) (6), director of the USAREC Commander's Initiatives Group, said in the release.

When a potential candidate responds to a social media post and asks a question, the virtual recruiters will initially respond, then pass the prospect off to a neighborhood recruiter, he added.

Recruiting Command has identified 65 different types of neighborhoods, or "segmentations," based on demographic data from the last U.S. census, the release states.

One of the main segmentations in downtown Baltimore is the "Urban Modern Mix," Iden said. Characteristics for people in this segmentation include listening to urban adult contemporary music and having an interest in boxing. Virtual recruiting teams use such data to help target their social media posts, she said.

Despite the progress, recruiting officials say the effort is far from complete.

"While these initiatives go on, this is a plane in flight," (b) (6) said in the release. "We have to deliver every day. So you've got to be very cognizant of what you're doing and how many ripples in the water you do to the recruiting force."

VCNO, CNP, CNR,

For Information Only

BLUF: We received media queries today from KC Star and McClatchy Newspapers regarding former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) and his status in the Navy. According to the media, (b) (6) is saying he is back in the Navy and "ready to deploy." Initial coverage from KC star included below.

Key Points:

* As a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve, in APR 2019 (b) (6) requested transfer to the selected reserves (SELRES) as an 1105 (General Unrestricted Line) LCDR, and that transfer was approved.

* Transfer to SELRES is an administrative action that does not trigger the "full accession look" of a new accession (i.e. a direct commissioning officer applicant). (b) (6) was only required to complete a physical since his previous one had lapsed over two years, which he completed successfully.

* He will not formally "swear-in" as he never left the United States Navy Reserves. He is currently affiliated with the St. Louis, Missouri NOSC.

* We have coordinated with CNRC PA and provided KC Star the following updated statement: "In April 2019, (b) (6) a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR), requested to transfer his status to the Selected Reserves (SELRES) as a general unrestricted line officer and his transfer was approved. He is currently affiliated with the NOSC in St Louis." They intend to update the story.

MAY 22, 2019 05:00 PM, UPDATED 2 MINUTES AGO

Former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) has told friends and supporters in recent weeks that he plans to deploy with the Navy to the Middle East in the fall and hopes his fourth book will be published later this year.

Earlier this month (b) (6) attended a gathering in Franklin County organized by longtime GOP activist (b) (6) (b) (6) where he shared his short-term plans regarding his return to active Navy service and forthcoming book.

(b) (6) has also shared his plans with others in meetings across the state over the past month, multiple sources told The Kansas City Star.

A Navy official said that as of Wednesday, there was no change to (b) (6) status in his personnel file.

(b) (6) is currently on inactive status with the Standby Reserve, which allows him to retain his commission but not to accrue time served to apply towards retirement. The status comes with no pay and does not make him eligible for promotion.

If he is in the process of applying to return to active status, that information would not be made public until a decision is made on whether or not to allow him to reactivate.

Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, which published (b) (6) previous three books, told The Star it does not have anything new from (b) (6) under contract.

(b) (6) could not immediately be reached for comment.

(b) (6) a Republican and former Navy SEAL, resigned from office a year ago <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212114314.html>> next week, succumbing to an avalanche of scandals and criminal charges - including accusations that he engaged in violent and coercive sexual misconduct <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> during a 2015 affair.

Despite his exit in disgrace from the governor's office, the specter of his possible return to public life looms over Missouri politics.

(b) (6) has been spotted around the state and in Washington, D.C., in recent weeks, meeting with former staff and political operatives.

Most telling is that his still-active gubernatorial campaign spent roughly $15,000 during the first three months of 2019 on staff salaries and reimbursements for travel, meals and other expenses. The campaign also paid nearly $20,000 worth of reimbursement of older travel expenses to (b) (6) a longtime (b) (6) friend and former communications adviser.

Many of his former confidantes told The Star they haven't heard any indication from (b) (6) that he's eyeing a return to politics in 2020.

(b) (6) said the picnic gathering where he mentioned his Navy plans was a private party with personal friends and relatives. She was surprised when (b) (6) agreed to attend, and said the occasion was "absolutely non-political." As far as (b) (6) knows, (b) (6) "is not looking at anything political" in the near future.

But she said there's a faction of grassroots Republican activists who feel (b) (6) was unfairly pushed out and would like to see him run for elective office again.

"I do think that's wishful thinking from people in Missouri," (b) (6) said. "I think there's just rumors all over that people wish he would run, and time will tell...Our election was stolen from us."

(b) (6) managing director of America First MO PAC, said she had heard that (b) (6) was thinking about a run for Senate, possibly for Missouri Sen. Roy Blunt's seat in 2022. She dismissed the idea of a primary challenge to Missouri Gov. Mike Parson in 2020.

(b) (6) "has enemies in Jefferson City that would really work against him. This would be more of clean slate for him," (b) (6) said of a possible Senate run. She said he still has support among grassroots conservatives in the state.

"People think he was run out of Jefferson City and they don't like that," (b) (6) said. "And Blunt's popularity is waning."

As evidence that Blunt could be vulnerable, (b) (6) pointed to the backlash he received from some conservatives
<<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/news/politics-government/congress/article228088259.html>> after he voted to block President Donald Trump's use of emergency powers to build a border wall.

(b) (6) for Missouri, which was created for his 2016 gubernatorial run, filed an amendment with the Missouri Ethics Commission in May 2018 re-focusing its aim on the 2020 GOP primary for governor.

That tactic is not unusual for a dormant committee, as many former elected officials maintain campaign accounts for years after they leave office.

(b) (6) predecessor, spent $85,239 through his campaign committee for about a year before closing it down. The expenses ranged from donations, hotel and catering fees, software and a portrait.

(b) (6) a one-term governor before (b) (6) kept spending through his committee for about five years after leaving office until it wound down in 2014. It spent money on legal fees, public communications, accounting and political donations. It spent $179,657 in those five years, even though Blunt never again sought public office.

Neither Blunt's or (b) (6) committee spent as much as (b) (6) committee spent in the last quarter alone, when (b) (6) for Missouri reported spending $240,000, mostly on legal fees.

State law requires that candidates only spend campaign cash on campaign matters
<<https://law.justia.com/codes/missouri/2011/titleix/chapter130/section130034>> . Office holders can spend it on official duties.

(b) (6) who served as director of boards and commissions in the governor's office, began working for (b) (6) for Missouri since January 2018.

Since (b) (6) June resignation, (b) (6) has been paid $5,500 a month and has been reimbursed for around $3,300 worth of mileage, meals, office supplies and other expenses.

(b) (6) said he left his employment with the campaign in February.

The campaign also paid (b) (6) (b) (6) $1,200 on March 1 for "campaign worker compensation, although it is unclear when the services were rendered. (b) (6) who previously served as "advance lead" in the governor's office, was paid another $1,000 for mileage and other expenses.

Beyond the staff spending, (b) (6) for Missouri also disclosed legal expenses to three law firms.

Chalmers Burch & Adams LLC was paid $12,800.

That's the law firm of Michael Adams, the attorney who helped organize (b) (6) nonprofit, A New Missouri Inc., and who continues to serve as its director.

On Tuesday, Adams won the GOP nomination for secretary of state

Clark Hill PLC, a DC law firm, was paid $56,000.

Husch Blackwell LLP was paid $117,000. This is the firm of (b) (6) a former Missouri House speaker who represents A New Missouri and (b) (6) campaign.

If he ever does attempt a return to Missouri politics, the allegations of illegal conduct that brought him down will certainly resurface.

(b) (6) was elected in 2016 on a campaign focused on rooting corruption out of Jefferson City.

He was forced from office a year and a half later under threat of impeachment and further criminal prosecution over a series of scandals that enveloped his administration.

(b) (6) was charged with two felonies in St. Louis County - invasion of privacy and computer tampering.

The first felony charge stemmed from accusations by a woman with whom (b) (6) had an affair in 2015.

The woman said under oath both to prosecutors and a legislative committee considering impeachment <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> that (b) (6) taped her hands to pull-up rings in his basement, blindfolded her, spit water into her mouth, ripped open her shirt, pulled down her pants and took a photo without her consent.

She says he also threatened to make the photos public if she ever told anyone about their encounter.

(b) (6) denied any wrongdoing and the charge was eventually dropped <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212769354.html>>, with the prosecutor citing statutes of limitation and potentially missing evidence.

The second involved allegations that he illegally used a donor list from veterans charity he founded <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article209422724.html>> to jumpstart his political career.

That charge was also dropped as part of a plea deal that forced (b) (6) from office. <<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/latest-news/article212173834.html>>

MAY 22, 2019 05:00 PM, UPDATED 2 MINUTES AGO

Former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) has told friends and supporters in recent weeks that he plans to deploy with the Navy to the Middle East in the fall and hopes his fourth book will be published later this year.

Earlier this month (b) (6) attended a gathering in Franklin County organized by longtime GOP activist (b) (6) (b) (6) where he shared his short-term plans regarding his return to active Navy service and forthcoming book.

(b) (6) has also shared his plans with others in meetings across the state over the past month, multiple sources told The Kansas City Star.

A Navy official said that as of Wednesday, there was no change to (b) (6) status in his personnel file.

(b) (6) is currently on inactive status with the Standby Reserve, which allows him to retain his commission but not to accrue time served to apply towards retirement. The status comes with no pay and does not make him eligible for promotion.

If he is in the process of applying to return to active status, that information would not be made public until a decision is made on whether or not to allow him to reactivate.

Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, which published (b) (6) previous three books, told The Star it does not have anything new from (b) (6) under contract.

(b) (6) could not immediately be reached for comment.

(b) (6) a Republican and former Navy SEAL, resigned from office a year ago <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212114314.html>> next week, succumbing to an avalanche of scandals and criminal charges - including accusations that he engaged in violent and coercive sexual misconduct <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> during a 2015 affair.

Despite his exit in disgrace from the governor's office, the specter of his possible return to public life looms over Missouri politics.

(b) (6) has been spotted around the state and in Washington, D.C., in recent weeks, meeting with former staff and political operatives.

Most telling is that his still-active gubernatorial campaign spent roughly $15,000 during the first three months of 2019 on staff salaries and reimbursements for travel, meals and other expenses. The campaign also paid nearly $20,000 worth of reimbursement of older travel expenses to (b) (6) a longtime (b) (6) friend and former communications adviser.

Many of his former confidantes told The Star they haven't heard any indication from (b) (6) that he's eyeing a return to politics in 2020.

(b) (6) said the picnic gathering where he mentioned his Navy plans was a private party with personal friends and relatives. She was surprised when (b) (6) agreed to attend, and said the occasion was "absolutely non-political." As far as (b) (6) knows, (b) (6) "is not looking at anything political" in the near future.

But she said there's a faction of grassroots Republican activists who feel (b) (6) was unfairly pushed out and would like to see him run for elective office again.

"I do think that's wishful thinking from people in Missouri," (b) (6) said. "I think there's just rumors all over that people wish he would run, and time will tell...Our election was stolen from us."

(b) (6) managing director of America First MO PAC, said she had heard that (b) (6) was thinking about a run for Senate, possibly for Missouri Sen. Roy Blunt's seat in 2022. She dismissed the idea of a primary challenge to Missouri Gov. Mike Parson in 2020.

(b) (6) "has enemies in Jefferson City that would really work against him. This would be more of clean slate for him," (b) (6) said of a possible Senate run. She said he still has support among grassroots conservatives in the state.

"People think he was run out of Jefferson City and they don't like that," (b) (6) said. "And Blunt's popularity is waning."

As evidence that Blunt could be vulnerable, (b) (6) pointed to the backlash he received from some conservatives <<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/news/politics-government/congress/article228088259.html>> after he voted to block President Donald Trump's use of emergency powers to build a border wall.

(b) (6) for Missouri, which was created for his 2016 gubernatorial run, filed an amendment with the Missouri Ethics Commission in May 2018 re-focusing its aim on the 2020 GOP primary for governor.

That tactic is not unusual for a dormant committee, as many former elected officials maintain campaign accounts for years after they leave office.

(b) (6) predecessor, spent $85,239 through his campaign committee for about a year before closing it down. The expenses ranged from donations, hotel and catering fees, software and a portrait.

(b) (6) a one-term governor before (b) (6) kept spending through his committee for about five years after leaving office until it wound down in 2014. It spent money on legal fees, public communications, accounting and political donations. It spent $179,657 in those five years, even though Blunt never again sought public office.

Neither Blunt's or (b) (6) committee spent as much as (b) (6) committee spent in the last quarter alone, when (b) (6) for Missouri reported spending $240,000, mostly on legal fees.

State law requires that candidates only spend campaign cash on campaign matters
<<https://law.justia.com/codes/missouri/2011/titleix/chapter130/section130034>> . Office holders can spend it on official duties.

(b) (6) who served as director of boards and commissions in the governor's office, began working for (b) (6) for Missouri since January 2018.

Since (b) (6) June resignation, (b) (6) has been paid $5,500 a month and has been reimbursed for around $3,300 worth of mileage, meals, office supplies and other expenses.

(b) (6) said he left his employment with the campaign in February.

The campaign also paid (b) (6) $1,200 on March 1 for "campaign worker compensation, although it is unclear when the services were rendered. (b) (6) who previously served as "advance lead" in the governor's office, was paid another $1,000 for mileage and other expenses.

Beyond the staff spending, (b) (6) for Missouri also disclosed legal expenses to three law firms.

Chalmers Burch & Adams LLC was paid $12,800.

That's the law firm of Michael Adams, the attorney who helped organize (b) (6) nonprofit, A New Missouri Inc., and who continues to serve as its director.

On Tuesday, Adams won the GOP nomination for secretary of state

Clark Hill PLC, a DC law firm, was paid $56,000.

Husch Blackwell LLP was paid $117,000. This is the firm of (b) (6) a former Missouri House speaker who represents A New Missouri and (b) (6) campaign.

If he ever does attempt a return to Missouri politics, the allegations of illegal conduct that brought him down will certainly resurface.

(b) (6) was elected in 2016 on a campaign focused on rooting corruption out of Jefferson City.

He was forced from office a year and a half later under threat of impeachment and further criminal prosecution over a series of scandals that enveloped his administration.

(b) (6) was charged with two felonies in St. Louis County - invasion of privacy and computer tampering.

The first felony charge stemmed from accusations by a woman with whom (b) (6) had an affair in 2015.

The woman said under oath both to prosecutors and a legislative committee considering impeachment <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> that (b) (6) taped her hands to pull-up rings in his basement, blindfolded her, spit water into her mouth, ripped open her shirt, pulled down her pants and took a photo without her consent.

She says he also threatened to make the photos public if she ever told anyone about their encounter.

(b) (6) denied any wrongdoing and the charge was eventually dropped <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212769354.html>>, with the prosecutor citing statutes of limitation and potentially missing evidence.

The second involved allegations that he illegally used a donor list from veterans charity he founded <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article209422724.html>> to jumpstart his political career.

That charge was also dropped as part of a plea deal that forced (b) (6) from office. <<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/latest-news/article212173834.html>>

(b) (6) managing director of America First MO PAC, said she had heard that (b) (6) was thinking about a run for Senate, possibly for Missouri Sen. Roy Blunt's seat in 2022. She dismissed the idea of a primary challenge to Missouri Gov. Mike Parson in 2020.

(b) (6) "has enemies in Jefferson City that would really work against him. This would be more of clean slate for him," (b) (6) said of a possible Senate run. She said he still has support among grassroots conservatives in the state.

"People think he was run out of Jefferson City and they don't like that," (b) (6) said. "And Blunt's popularity is waning."

As evidence that Blunt could be vulnerable, (b) (6) pointed to the backlash he received from some conservatives
<<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/news/politics-government/congress/article228088259.html>> after he voted to block President Donald Trump's use of emergency powers to build a border wall.

(b) (6) for Missouri, which was created for his 2016 gubernatorial run, filed an amendment with the Missouri Ethics Commission in May 2018 re-focusing its aim on the 2020 GOP primary for governor.

That tactic is not unusual for a dormant committee, as many former elected officials maintain campaign accounts for years after they leave office.

(b) (6) predecessor, spent $85,239 through his campaign committee for about a year before closing it down. The expenses ranged from donations, hotel and catering fees, software and a portrait.

(b) (6) a one-term governor before (b) (6) kept spending through his committee for about five years after leaving office until it wound down in 2014. It spent money on legal fees, public communications, accounting and political donations. It spent $179,657 in those five years, even though Blunt never again sought public office.

Neither Blunt's or (b) (6) committee spent as much as (b) (6) committee spent in the last quarter alone, when (b) (6) for Missouri reported spending $240,000, mostly on legal fees.

State law requires that candidates only spend campaign cash on campaign matters
<<https://law.justia.com/codes/missouri/2011/titleix/chapter130/section130034>
> . Office holders can spend it on official duties.

(b) (6) who served as director of boards and commissions in the governor's office, began working for (b) (6) for Missouri since January 2018.

Since (b) (6) June resignation, (b) (6) has been paid $5,500 a month and has been reimbursed for around $3,300 worth of mileage, meals, office supplies and other expenses.

(b) (6) said he left his employment with the campaign in February.

The campaign also paid (b) (6) $1,200 on March 1 for "campaign worker compensation, although it is unclear when the services were rendered. (b) (6) who previously served as "advance lead" in the governor's office, was paid another $1,000 for mileage and other expenses.

Beyond the staff spending, (b) (6) for Missouri also disclosed legal expenses to three law firms.

Chalmers Burch & Adams LLC was paid $12,800.

That's the law firm of Michael Adams, the attorney who helped organize (b) (6) nonprofit, A New Missouri Inc., and who continues to serve as its director.

On Tuesday, Adams won the GOP nomination for secretary of state

Clark Hill PLC, a DC law firm, was paid $56,000.

Husch Blackwell LLP was paid $117,000. This is the firm of (b) (6) a former Missouri House speaker who represents A New Missouri and (b) (6) campaign.

If he ever does attempt a return to Missouri politics, the allegations of illegal conduct that brought him down will certainly resurface.

(b) (6) was elected in 2016 on a campaign focused on rooting corruption out of Jefferson City.

He was forced from office a year and a half later under threat of impeachment and further criminal prosecution over a series of scandals that enveloped his administration.

(b) (6) was charged with two felonies in St. Louis County - invasion of privacy and computer tampering.

The first felony charge stemmed from accusations by a woman with whom (b) (6) had an affair in 2015.

The woman said under oath both to prosecutors and a legislative committee considering impeachment <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> that (b) (6) taped her hands to pull-up rings in his basement, blindfolded her, spit water into her mouth, ripped open her shirt, pulled down her pants and took a photo without her consent.

She says he also threatened to make the photos public if she ever told anyone about their encounter.

(b) (6) denied any wrongdoing and the charge was eventually dropped <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212769354.html>> , with the prosecutor citing statutes of limitation and potentially missing evidence.

The second involved allegations that he illegally used a donor list from veterans charity he founded <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article209422724.html>> to jumpstart his political career.

That charge was also dropped as part of a plea deal that forced (b) (6) from office. <<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/latest-news/article212173834.html>>

BLUF: We received media queries today from KC Star and McClatchy Newspapers regarding former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) and his status in the Navy. According to the media, (b) (6) is saying he is back in the Navy and "ready to deploy." Initial coverage from KC star included below.

Key Points:

* As a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve, in APR 2019 (b) (6) requested transfer to the selected reserves (SELRES) as an 1105 (General Unrestricted Line) LCDR, and that transfer was approved.

* Transfer to SELRES is an administrative action that does not trigger the "full accession look" of a new accession (i.e. a direct commissioning officer applicant). (b) (6) was only required to complete a physical since his previous one had lapsed over two years, which he completed successfully.

* He will not formally "swear-in" as he never left the United States Navy Reserves. He is currently affiliated with the St. Louis, Missouri NOSC.

* We have coordinated with CNRC PA and provided KC Star the following updated statement: "In April 2019, (b) (6) a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR), requested to transfer his status to the Selected Reserves (SELRES) as a general unrestricted line officer and his transfer was approved. He is currently affiliated with the NOSC in St Louis." They intend to update the story.

MAY 22, 2019 05:00 PM, UPDATED 2 MINUTES AGO

Former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) has told friends and supporters in recent weeks that he plans to deploy with the Navy to the Middle East in the fall and hopes his fourth book will be published later this year.

Earlier this month (b) (6) attended a gathering in Franklin County organized by longtime GOP activist (b) (6) (b) (6) where he shared his short-term plans regarding his return to active Navy service and forthcoming book.

(b) (6) has also shared his plans with others in meetings across the state over the past month, multiple sources told The Kansas City Star.

A Navy official said that as of Wednesday, there was no change to (b) (6) status in his personnel file.

(b) (6) is currently on inactive status with the Standby Reserve, which allows him to retain his commission but not to accrue time served to apply towards retirement. The status comes with no pay and does not make him eligible for promotion.

If he is in the process of applying to return to active status, that information would not be made public until a decision is made on whether or not to allow him to reactivate.

Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, which published (b) (6) previous three books, told The Star it does not have anything new from (b) (6) under contract.

(b) (6) could not immediately be reached for comment.

(b) (6) a Republican and former Navy SEAL, resigned from office a year ago <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212114314.html>> next week, succumbing to an avalanche of scandals and criminal charges - including accusations that he engaged in violent and coercive sexual misconduct <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> during a 2015 affair.

Despite his exit in disgrace from the governor's office, the specter of his possible return to public life looms over Missouri politics.

(b) (6) has been spotted around the state and in Washington, D.C., in recent weeks, meeting with former staff and political operatives.

Most telling is that his still-active gubernatorial campaign spent roughly $15,000 during the first three months of 2019 on staff salaries and reimbursements for travel, meals and other expenses. The campaign also paid nearly $20,000 worth of reimbursement of older travel expenses to (b) (6) a longtime (b) (6) friend and former communications adviser.

Many of his former confidantes told The Star they haven't heard any indication from (b) (6) that he's eyeing a return to politics in 2020.

(b) (6) said the picnic gathering where he mentioned his Navy plans was a private party with personal friends and relatives. She was surprised when (b) (6) agreed to attend, and said the occasion was "absolutely non-political." As far as (b) (6) knows, (b) (6) "is not looking at anything political" in the near future.

But she said there's a faction of grassroots Republican activists who feel (b) (6) was unfairly pushed out and would like to see him run for elective office again.

"I do think that's wishful thinking from people in Missouri," (b) (6) said. "I think there's just rumors all over that people wish he would run, and time will tell...Our election was stolen from us."

(b) (6) managing director of America First MO PAC, said she had heard that (b) (6) was thinking about a run for Senate, possibly for Missouri Sen. Roy Blunt's seat in 2022. She dismissed the idea of a primary challenge to Missouri Gov. Mike Parson in 2020.

(b) (6) "has enemies in Jefferson City that would really work against him. This would be more of clean slate for him," (b) (6) said of a possible Senate run. She said he still has support among grassroots conservatives in the state.

"People think he was run out of Jefferson City and they don't like that," (b) (6) said. "And Blunt's popularity is waning."

As evidence that Blunt could be vulnerable, (b) (6) pointed to the backlash he received from some conservatives
<<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/news/politics-government/congress/article228088259.html>> after he voted to block President Donald Trump's use of emergency powers to build a border wall.

(b) (6) for Missouri, which was created for his 2016 gubernatorial run, filed an amendment with the Missouri Ethics Commission in May 2018 re-focusing its aim on the 2020 GOP primary for governor.

That tactic is not unusual for a dormant committee, as many former elected officials maintain campaign accounts for years after they leave office.

(b) (6) predecessor, spent $85,239 through his campaign committee for about a year before closing it down. The expenses ranged from donations, hotel and catering fees, software and a portrait.

(b) (6) a one-term governor before (b) (6) kept spending through his committee for about five years after leaving office until it wound down in 2014. It spent money on legal fees, public communications, accounting and political donations. It spent $179,657 in those five years, even though Blunt never again sought public office.

Clark Hill PLC, a DC law firm, was paid $56,000.

The woman said under oath both to prosecutors and a legislative committee considering impeachment <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> that (b) (6) taped her hands to pull-up rings in his basement, blindfolded her, spit water into her mouth, ripped open her shirt, pulled down her pants and took a photo without her consent.

She says he also threatened to make the photos public if she ever told anyone about their encounter.

(b) (6) denied any wrongdoing and the charge was eventually dropped <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212769354.html>> , with the prosecutor citing statutes of limitation and potentially missing evidence.

The second involved allegations that he illegally used a donor list from veterans charity he founded <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article209422724.html>> to jumpstart his political career.

(b) (6) could not immediately be reached for comment.

(b) (6) a Republican and former Navy SEAL, resigned from office a year ago <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212114314.html>> next week, succumbing to an avalanche of scandals and criminal charges - including accusations that he engaged in violent and coercive sexual misconduct <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> during a 2015 affair.

Despite his exit in disgrace from the governor's office, the specter of his possible return to public life looms over Missouri politics.

(b) (6) has been spotted around the state and in Washington, D.C., in recent weeks, meeting with former staff and political operatives.

Most telling is that his still-active gubernatorial campaign spent roughly $15,000 during the first three months of 2019 on staff salaries and reimbursements for travel, meals and other expenses. The campaign also paid nearly $20,000 worth of reimbursement of older travel expenses to (b) (6) a longtime (b) (6) friend and former communications adviser.

Many of his former confidantes told The Star they haven't heard any indication from (b) (6) that he's eyeing a return to politics in 2020.

(b) (6) said the picnic gathering where he mentioned his Navy plans was a private party with personal friends and relatives. She was surprised when (b) (6) agreed to attend, and said the occasion was "absolutely non-political." As far as (b) (6) knows, (b) (6) "is not looking at anything political" in the near future.

But she said there's a faction of grassroots Republican activists who feel (b) (6) was unfairly pushed out and would like to see him run for elective office again.

"I do think that's wishful thinking from people in Missouri," (b) (6) said. "I think there's just rumors all over that people wish he would run, and time will tell...Our election was stolen from us."

(b) (6) managing director of America First MO PAC, said she had heard that (b) (6) was thinking about a run for Senate, possibly for Missouri Sen. Roy Blunt's seat in 2022. She dismissed the idea of a primary challenge to Missouri Gov. Mike Parson in 2020.

(b) (6) "has enemies in Jefferson City that would really work against him. This would be more of clean slate for him," (b) (6) said of a possible Senate run. She said he still has support among grassroots conservatives in the state.

"People think he was run out of Jefferson City and they don't like that," (b) (6) said. "And Blunt's popularity is waning."

As evidence that Blunt could be vulnerable, (b) (6) pointed to the backlash he received from some conservatives
<<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/news/politics-government/congress/article228088259.html>> after he voted to block President Donald Trump's use of emergency powers to build a border wall.

(b) (6) for Missouri, which was created for his 2016 gubernatorial run, filed an amendment with the Missouri Ethics Commission in May 2018 re-focusing its aim on the 2020 GOP primary for governor.

That tactic is not unusual for a dormant committee, as many former elected officials maintain campaign accounts for years after they leave office.

(b) (6) predecessor, spent $85,239 through his campaign committee for about a year before closing it down. The expenses ranged from donations, hotel and catering fees, software and a portrait.

(b) (6) a one-term governor before (b) (6) kept spending through his committee for about five years after leaving office until it wound down in 2014. It spent money on legal fees, public communications, accounting and political donations. It spent $179,657 in those five years, even though Blunt never again sought public office.

Neither Blunt's or (b) (6) committee spent as much as (b) (6) committee spent in the last quarter alone, when (b) (6) for Missouri reported spending $240,000, mostly on legal fees.

State law requires that candidates only spend campaign cash on campaign matters
<<https://law.justia.com/codes/missouri/2011/titleix/chapter130/section130034>> . Office holders can spend it on official duties.

(b) (6) who served as director of boards and commissions in the governor's office, began working for (b) (6) for Missouri since January 2018.

Since (b) (6) June resignation, (b) (6) has been paid $5,500 a month and has been reimbursed for around $3,300 worth of mileage, meals, office supplies and other expenses.

(b) (6) said he left his employment with the campaign in February.

The campaign also paid (b) (6) $1,200 on March 1 for "campaign worker compensation, although it is unclear when the services were rendered. (b) (6) who previously served as "advance lead" in the governor's office, was paid another $1,000 for mileage and other expenses.

Beyond the staff spending, (b) (6) for Missouri also disclosed legal expenses to three law firms.

Chalmers Burch & Adams LLC was paid $12,800.

That's the law firm of Michael Adams, the attorney who helped organize (b) (6) nonprofit, A New Missouri Inc., and who continues to serve as its director.

On Tuesday, Adams won the GOP nomination for secretary of state

Clark Hill PLC, a DC law firm, was paid $56,000.

Husch Blackwell LLP was paid $117,000. This is the firm of (b) (6) a former Missouri House speaker who represents A New Missouri and (b) (6) campaign.

If he ever does attempt a return to Missouri politics, the allegations of illegal conduct that brought him down will certainly resurface.

(b) (6) was elected in 2016 on a campaign focused on rooting corruption out of Jefferson City.

He was forced from office a year and a half later under threat of impeachment and further criminal prosecution over a series of scandals that enveloped his administration.

(b) (6) was charged with two felonies in St. Louis County - invasion of privacy and computer tampering.

The first felony charge stemmed from accusations by a woman with whom (b) (6) had an affair in 2015.

The woman said under oath both to prosecutors and a legislative committee considering impeachment <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> that (b) (6) taped her hands to pull-up rings in his basement, blindfolded her, spit water into her mouth, ripped open her shirt, pulled down her pants and took a photo without her consent.

She says he also threatened to make the photos public if she ever told anyone about their encounter.

(b) (6) denied any wrongdoing and the charge was eventually dropped <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212769354.html>> , with the prosecutor citing statutes of limitation and potentially missing evidence.

The second involved allegations that he illegally used a donor list from veterans charity he founded <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article209422724.html>> to jumpstart his political career.

That charge was also dropped as part of a plea deal that forced (b) (6) from office. <<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/latest-news/article212173834.html>>

VCNO, CNP, CNR,

For Information Only

BLUF: We received media queries today from KC Star and McClatchy Newspapers regarding former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) and his status in the Navy. According to the media, (b) (6) is saying he is back in the Navy and "ready to deploy." Initial coverage from KC star included below.

Key Points:

* As a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve, in APR 2019 (b) (6) requested transfer to the selected reserves (SELRES) as an 1105 (General Unrestricted Line) LCDR, and that transfer was approved.

* Transfer to SELRES is an administrative action that does not trigger the "full accession look" of a new accession (i.e. a direct commissioning officer applicant). (b) (6) was only required to complete a physical since his previous one had lapsed over two years, which he completed successfully.

* He will not formally "swear-in" as he never left the United States Navy Reserves. He is currently affiliated with the St. Louis, Missouri NOSC.

* We have coordinated with CNRC PA and provided KC Star the following updated statement: "In April 2019, (b) (6) a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR), requested to transfer his status to the Selected Reserves (SELRES) as a general unrestricted line officer and his transfer was approved. He is currently affiliated with the NOSC in St Louis." They intend to update the story.

Former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) has told friends and supporters in recent weeks that he plans to deploy with the Navy to the Middle East in the fall and hopes his fourth book will be published later this year.

Earlier this month (b) (6) attended a gathering in Franklin County organized by longtime GOP activist (b) (6) (b) (6) where he shared his short-term plans regarding his return to active Navy service and forthcoming book.

(b) (6) has also shared his plans with others in meetings across the state over the past month, multiple sources told The Kansas City Star.

A Navy official said that as of Wednesday, there was no change to (b) (6) status in his personnel file.

(b) (6) is currently on inactive status with the Standby Reserve, which allows him to retain his commission but not to accrue time served to apply towards retirement. The status comes with no pay and does not make him eligible for promotion.

If he is in the process of applying to return to active status, that information would not be made public until a decision is made on whether or not to allow him to reactivate.

Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, which published (b) (6) previous three books, told The Star it does not have anything new from (b) (6) under contract.

(b) (6) could not immediately be reached for comment.

(b) (6) a Republican and former Navy SEAL, resigned from office a year ago <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212114314.html>> next week, succumbing to an avalanche of scandals and criminal charges - including accusations that he engaged in violent and coercive sexual misconduct <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> during a 2015 affair.

BLUF: We received media queries today from KC Star and McClatchy Newspapers regarding former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) and his status in the Navy.

According to the media, (b) (6) is saying he is back in the Navy and "ready to deploy." Initial coverage from KC star included below.

Key Points:

* As a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve, in APR 2019 (b) (6) requested transfer to the selected reserves (SELRES) as an 1105 (General Unrestricted Line) LCDR, and that transfer was approved.

* Transfer to SELRES is an administrative action that does not trigger the "full accession look" of a new accession (i.e. a direct commissioning officer applicant). (b) (6) was only required to complete a physical since his previous one had lapsed over two years, which he completed successfully.

* He will not formally "swear-in" as he never left the United States Navy Reserves. He is currently affiliated with the St. Louis, Missouri NOSC.

* We have coordinated with CNRC PA and provided KC Star the following updated statement: "In April 2019, (b) (6) a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR), requested to transfer his status to the Selected Reserves (SELRES) as a general unrestricted line officer and his transfer was approved. He is currently affiliated with the NOSC in St Louis." They intend to update the story.

MAY 22, 2019 05:00 PM, UPDATED 2 MINUTES AGO

Former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) (b) (6) has told friends and supporters in recent weeks that he plans to deploy with the Navy to the Middle East in the fall and hopes his fourth book will be published later this year.

Earlier this month (b) (6) attended a gathering in Franklin County organized by longtime GOP activist (b) (6) (b) (6) where he shared his short-term plans regarding his return to active Navy service and forthcoming book.

(b) (6) has also shared his plans with others in meetings across the state over the past month, multiple sources told The Kansas City Star.

A Navy official said that as of Wednesday, there was no change to (b) (6) status in his personnel file.

(b) (6) is currently on inactive status with the Standby Reserve, which allows him to retain his commission but not to accrue time served to apply towards retirement. The status comes with no pay and does not make him eligible for promotion.

If he is in the process of applying to return to active status, that information would not be made public until a decision is made on whether or not to allow him to reactivate.

Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, which published (b) (6) previous three books, told The Star it does not have anything new from (b) (6) under contract.

(b) (6) could not immediately be reached for comment.

(b) (6) a Republican and former Navy SEAL, resigned from office a year ago

<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212114314.html>>

next week, succumbing to an avalanche of scandals and criminal charges - including accusations that he engaged in violent and coercive sexual

<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>>

during a 2015 affair.

Despite his exit in disgrace from the governor's office, the specter of his possible return to public life looms over Missouri politics.

(b) (6) has been spotted around the state and in Washington, D.C., in recent weeks, meeting with former staff and political operatives.

Most telling is that his still-active gubernatorial campaign spent roughly

$15,000 during the first three months of 2019 on staff salaries and reimbursements for travel, meals and other expenses. The campaign also paid nearly $20,000 worth of reimbursement of older travel expenses to (b) (6)

(b) (6) a longtime (b) (6) friend and former communications adviser.

Many of his former confidantes told The Star they haven't heard any indication from (b) (6) that he's eyeing a return to politics in 2020.

(b) said the picnic gathering where he mentioned his Navy plans was a private party with personal friends and relatives. She was surprised when (b) (6) agreed to attend, and said the occasion was "absolutely non-political." As far as (b) knows, (b) (6) "is not looking at anything political" in the near future.

But she said there's a faction of grassroots Republican activists who feel (b) (6) was unfairly pushed out and would like to see him run for elective office again.

"I do think that's wishful thinking from people in Missouri," (b) said. "I think there's just rumors all over that people wish he would run, and time will tell...Our election was stolen from us."

(b) (6) managing director of America First MO PAC, said she had heard that (b) (6) was thinking about a run for Senate, possibly for Missouri Sen. Roy Blunt's seat in 2022. She dismissed the idea of a primary challenge to Missouri Gov. Mike Parson in 2020.

(b) (6) "has enemies in Jefferson City that would really work against him. This would be more of clean slate for him," (b) said of a possible Senate run. She said he still has support among grassroots conservatives in the state.

"People think he was run out of Jefferson City and they don't like that,"

(b) said. "And Blunt's popularity is waning."

As evidence that Blunt could be vulnerable, (b) pointed to the backlash he received from some conservatives

<<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/news/politics-government/congress/article228088259.html>> after he voted to block President Donald Trump's use of emergency powers to build a border wall.

(b) (6) for Missouri, which was created for his 2016 gubernatorial run, filed an amendment with the Missouri Ethics Commission in May 2018 re-focusing its aim on the 2020 GOP primary for governor.

That tactic is not unusual for a dormant committee, as many former elected officials maintain campaign accounts for years after they leave office.

(b) (6) (b) (6) predecessor, spent $85,239 through his campaign committee for about a year before closing it down. The expenses ranged from donations, hotel and catering fees, software and a portrait.

(b) (6) a one-term governor before (b) (6) kept spending through his committee for about five years after leaving office until it wound down in 2014. It spent money on legal fees, public communications, accounting and political donations. It spent $179,657 in those five years, even though Blunt never again sought public office.

Neither Blunt's or (b) (6) committee spent as much as (b) (6) committee spent in the last quarter alone, when (b) (6) for Missouri reported spending $240,000, mostly on legal fees.

State law requires that candidates only spend campaign cash on campaign matters

<<https://law.justia.com/codes/missouri/2011/titleix/chapter130/section130034>

/> . Office holders can spend it on official duties.

(b) (6) who served as director of boards and commissions in the governor's office, began working for (b) (6) for Missouri since January 2018.

Since (b) (6) June resignation, (b) (6) has been paid $5,500 a month and has been reimbursed for around $3,300 worth of mileage, meals, office supplies and other expenses.

(b) (6) said he left his employment with the campaign in February.

The campaign also paid (b) (6) (b) (6) $1,200 on March 1 for "campaign worker compensation, although it is unclear when the services were rendered.

(b) (6) who previously served as "advance lead" in the governor's office, was paid another $1,000 for mileage and other expenses.

Beyond the staff spending, (b) (6) for Missouri also disclosed legal expenses to three law firms.

Chalmers Burch & Adams LLC was paid $12,800.

That's the law firm of Michael Adams, the attorney who helped organize (b) (6) nonprofit, A New Missouri Inc., and who continues to serve as its director.

On Tuesday, Adams won the GOP nomination for secretary of state
<<https://www.courier-journal.com/story/news/politics/elections/kentucky/2019/05/21/kentucky-primary-election-may-2019-secretary-of-state-winners/3667307002/>> in Kentucky. He did not respond to a request for comment by The Star.

Clark Hill PLC, a DC law firm, was paid $56,000.

Husch Blackwell LLP was paid $117,000. This is the firm of (b) (6)
(b) (6) a former Missouri House speaker who represents A New Missouri and (b) (6) campaign.

If he ever does attempt a return to Missouri politics, the allegations of illegal conduct that brought him down will certainly resurface.

(b) (6) was elected in 2016 on a campaign focused on rooting corruption out of Jefferson City.

He was forced from office a year and a half later under threat of impeachment and further criminal prosecution over a series of scandals that enveloped his administration.

(b) (6) was charged with two felonies in St. Louis County - invasion of privacy and computer tampering.

The first felony charge stemmed from accusations by a woman with whom (b) (6) had an affair in 2015.

The woman said under oath both to prosecutors and a legislative committee considering impeachment

<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>>

that (b) (6) taped her hands to pull-up rings in his basement, blindfolded her, spit water into her mouth, ripped open her shirt, pulled down her pants and took a photo without her consent.

She says he also threatened to make the photos public if she ever told anyone about their encounter.

(b) (6) denied any wrongdoing and the charge was eventually dropped

<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212769354.html>>

, with the prosecutor citing statutes of limitation and potentially missing evidence.

The second involved allegations that he illegally used a donor list from veterans charity he founded

<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article209422724.html>>

to jumpstart his political career.

from office. <<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/latest-news/article212173834.html>>

BLUF: We received media queries today from KC Star and McClatchy Newspapers regarding former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) and his status in the Navy. According to the media, (b) (6) is saying he is back in the Navy and "ready to deploy." Initial coverage from KC star included below.

Key Points:

* As a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve, in APR 2019 (b) (6) requested transfer to the selected reserves (SELRES) as an 1105 (General Unrestricted Line) LCDR, and that transfer was approved.

* Transfer to SELRES is an administrative action that does not trigger the "full accession look" of a new accession (i.e. a direct commissioning officer applicant). (b) (6) was only required to complete a physical since his previous one had lapsed over two years, which he completed successfully.

* He will not formally "swear-in" as he never left the United States Navy Reserves. He is currently affiliated with the St. Louis, Missouri NOSC.

* We have coordinated with CNRC PA and provided KC Star the following updated statement: "In April 2019, (b) (6) a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR), requested to transfer his status to the Selected Reserves (SELRES) as a general unrestricted line officer and his transfer was approved. He is currently affiliated with the NOSC in St Louis." They intend to update the story.

MAY 22, 2019 05:00 PM, UPDATED 2 MINUTES AGO

Former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) (b) (6) has told friends and supporters in recent weeks that he plans to deploy with the Navy to the Middle East in the fall and hopes his fourth book will be published later this year.

Earlier this month (b) (6) attended a gathering in Franklin County organized by longtime GOP activist (b) (6) (b) (6) where he shared his short-term plans regarding his return to active Navy service and forthcoming book.

(b) (6) has also shared his plans with others in meetings across the state over the past month, multiple sources told The Kansas City Star.

A Navy official said that as of Wednesday, there was no change to (b) (6) status in his personnel file.

(b) (6) is currently on inactive status with the Standby Reserve, which allows him to retain his commission but not to accrue time served to apply towards retirement. The status comes with no pay and does not make him eligible for promotion.

If he is in the process of applying to return to active status, that information would not be made public until a decision is made on whether or not to allow him to reactivate.

Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, which published (b) (6) previous three books, told The Star it does not have anything new from (b) (6) under contract.

(b) (6) could not immediately be reached for comment.

(b) (6) a Republican and former Navy SEAL, resigned from office a year ago

<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212114314.html>>

next week, succumbing to an avalanche of scandals and criminal charges - including accusations that he engaged in violent and coercive sexual misconduct

<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>>

during a 2015 affair.

Despite his exit in disgrace from the governor's office, the specter of his possible return to public life looms over Missouri politics.

(b) (6) has been spotted around the state and in Washington, D.C., in recent weeks, meeting with former staff and political operatives.

Most telling is that his still-active gubernatorial campaign spent roughly $15,000 during the first three months of 2019 on staff salaries and reimbursements for travel, meals and other expenses. The campaign also paid nearly $20,000 worth of reimbursement of older travel expenses to (b) (6) a longtime (b) (6) friend and former communications adviser.

Many of his former confidantes told The Star they haven't heard any indication from (b) (6) that he's eyeing a return to politics in 2020.

(b) (6) said the picnic gathering where he mentioned his Navy plans was a private party with personal friends and relatives. She was surprised when (b) (6) agreed to attend, and said the occasion was "absolutely non-political." As far as (b) (6) knows, (b) (6) "is not looking at anything political" in the near future.

But she said there's a faction of grassroots Republican activists who feel

(b) (6) was unfairly pushed out and would like to see him run for elective office again.

"I do think that's wishful thinking from people in Missouri," (b) (6) said. "I think there's just rumors all over that people wish he would run, and time will tell...Our election was stolen from us."

(b) (6) managing director of America First MO PAC, said she had heard that (b) (6) was thinking about a run for Senate, possibly for Missouri Sen. Roy Blunt's seat in 2022. She dismissed the idea of a primary challenge to Missouri Gov. Mike Parson in 2020.

(b) (6) "has enemies in Jefferson City that would really work against him. This would be more of clean slate for him," (b) (6) said of a possible Senate run. She said he still has support among grassroots conservatives in the state.

"People think he was run out of Jefferson City and they don't like that,"

(b) (6) said. "And Blunt's popularity is waning."

As evidence that Blunt could be vulnerable, (b) (6) pointed to the backlash he received from some conservatives

<<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/news/politics-government/congress/article228088259.html>> after he voted to block President Donald Trump's use of emergency powers to build a border wall.

(b) (6) for Missouri, which was created for his 2016 gubernatorial run, filed an amendment with the Missouri Ethics Commission in May 2018 re-focusing its aim on the 2020 GOP primary for governor.

That tactic is not unusual for a dormant committee, as many former elected officials maintain campaign accounts for years after they leave office.

(b) (6) predecessor, spent $85,239 through his campaign committee for about a year before closing it down. The expenses ranged from donations, hotel and catering fees, software and a portrait.

(b) (6) a one-term governor before (b) (6) kept spending through his committee for about five years after leaving office until it wound down in 2014. It spent money on legal fees, public communications, accounting and political donations. It spent $179,657 in those five years, even though Blunt never again sought public office.

Neither Blunt's or (b) (6) committee spent as much as (b) (6) committee spent in the last quarter alone, when (b) (6) for Missouri reported spending $240,000, mostly on legal fees.

State law requires that candidates only spend campaign cash on campaign

<<https://law.justia.com/codes/missouri/2011/titleix/chapter130/section130034>

/> . Office holders can spend it on official duties.

(b) (6) who served as director of boards and commissions in the governor's office, began working for (b) (6) for Missouri since January 2018.

Since (b) (6) June resignation, (b) (6) has been paid $5,500 a month and has been reimbursed for around $3,300 worth of mileage, meals, office supplies and other expenses.

(b) (6) said he left his employment with the campaign in February.

The campaign also paid (b) (6) (b) (6) $1,200 on March 1 for "campaign worker compensation, although it is unclear when the services were rendered.

(b) (6) who previously served as "advance lead" in the governor's office, was paid another $1,000 for mileage and other expenses.

Beyond the staff spending, (b) (6) for Missouri also disclosed legal expenses to three law firms.

Chalmers Burch & Adams LLC was paid $12,800.

That's the law firm of Michael Adams, the attorney who helped organize

(b) (6) nonprofit, A New Missouri Inc., and who continues to serve as its director.

On Tuesday, Adams won the GOP nomination for secretary of state
<<https://www.courier-journal.com/story/news/politics/elections/kentucky/2019/05/21/kentucky-primary-election-may-2019-secretary-of-state-winners/3667307002/>> in Kentucky. He did not respond to a request for comment by The Star.

Clark Hill PLC, a DC law firm, was paid $56,000.

Husch Blackwell LLP was paid $117,000. This is the firm of (b) (6)
(b) (6) a former Missouri House speaker who represents A New Missouri and
(b) (6) campaign.

If he ever does attempt a return to Missouri politics, the allegations of illegal conduct that brought him down will certainly resurface.

(b) (6) was elected in 2016 on a campaign focused on rooting corruption out of Jefferson City.

He was forced from office a year and a half later under threat of impeachment and further criminal prosecution over a series of scandals that enveloped his administration.

(b) (6) was charged with two felonies in St. Louis County - invasion of privacy and computer tampering.

The first felony charge stemmed from accusations by a woman with whom

(b) (6) had an affair in 2015.

The woman said under oath both to prosecutors and a legislative committee considering impeachment

<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>>

that (b) (6) taped her hands to pull-up rings in his basement, blindfolded her, spit water into her mouth, ripped open her shirt, pulled down her pants and took a photo without her consent.

She says he also threatened to make the photos public if she ever told anyone about their encounter.

(b) (6) denied any wrongdoing and the charge was eventually dropped

<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212769354.html>>

, with the prosecutor citing statutes of limitation and potentially missing evidence.

The second involved allegations that he illegally used a donor list from veterans charity he founded

<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article209422724.html>>

to jumpstart his political career.

from office. <<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/latest-news/article212173834.html>>

Former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) (b) (6) has told friends and supporters in recent weeks that he plans to deploy with the Navy to the Middle East in the fall and hopes his fourth book will be published later this year.

Earlier this month (b) (6) attended a gathering in Franklin County organized by longtime GOP activist (b) (6) (b) (6) where he shared his short-term plans regarding his return to active Navy service and forthcoming book.

(b) (6) has also shared his plans with others in meetings across the state over the past month, multiple sources told The Kansas City Star.

A Navy official said that as of Wednesday, there was no change to (b) (6) status in his personnel file.

(b) (6) is currently on inactive status with the Standby Reserve, which allows him to retain his commission but not to accrue time served to apply towards retirement. The status comes with no pay and does not make him eligible for promotion.

If he is in the process of applying to return to active status, that information would not be made public until a decision is made on whether or not to allow him to reactivate.

Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, which published (b) (6) previous three books, told The Star it does not have anything new from (b) (6) under contract.

(b) (6) could not immediately be reached for comment.

(b) (6) a Republican and former Navy SEAL, resigned from office a year ago <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212114314.html>> next week, succumbing to an avalanche of scandals and criminal charges - including accusations that he engaged in violent and coercive sexual misconduct <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> during a 2015 affair.

Despite his exit in disgrace from the governor's office, the specter of his possible return to public life looms over Missouri politics.

(b) (6) has been spotted around the state and in Washington, D.C., in recent weeks, meeting with former staff and political operatives.

Most telling is that his still-active gubernatorial campaign spent roughly $15,000 during the first three months of 2019 on staff salaries and reimbursements for travel, meals and other expenses. The campaign also paid nearly $20,000 worth of reimbursement of older travel expenses to (b) (6) a longtime (b) (6) friend and former communications adviser.

Many of his former confidantes told The Star they haven't heard any indication from (b) (6) that he's eyeing a return to politics in 2020.

(b) (6) said the picnic gathering where he mentioned his Navy plans was a private party with personal friends and relatives. She was surprised when (b) (6) agreed to attend, and said the occasion was "absolutely non-political." As far as (b) (6) knows, (b) (6) "is not looking at anything political" in the near future.

But she said there's a faction of grassroots Republican activists who feel (b) (6) was unfairly pushed out and would like to see him run for elective office again.

"I do think that's wishful thinking from people in Missouri," (b) (6) said. "I think there's just rumors all over that people wish he would run, and time will tell...Our election was stolen from us."

(b) (6) managing director of America First MO PAC, said she had heard that (b) (6) was thinking about a run for Senate, possibly for Missouri Sen. Roy Blunt's seat in 2022. She dismissed the idea of a primary challenge to Missouri Gov. Mike Parson in 2020.

(b) (6) "has enemies in Jefferson City that would really work against him. This would be more of clean slate for him," (b) (6) said of a possible Senate run. She said he still has support among grassroots conservatives in the state.

"People think he was run out of Jefferson City and they don't like that,"

(b) (6) said. "And Blunt's popularity is waning."

As evidence that Blunt could be vulnerable, (b) (6) pointed to the backlash he received from some conservatives

<<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/news/politics-government/congress/article228088259.html>> after he voted to block President Donald Trump's use of emergency powers to build a border wall.

(b) (6) for Missouri, which was created for his 2016 gubernatorial run, filed an amendment with the Missouri Ethics Commission in May 2018 re-focusing its aim on the 2020 GOP primary for governor.

That tactic is not unusual for a dormant committee, as many former elected officials maintain campaign accounts for years after they leave office.

(b) (6) predecessor, spent $85,239 through his campaign committee for about a year before closing it down. The expenses ranged from donations, hotel and catering fees, software and a portrait.

(b) (6) a one-term governor before (b) (6) kept spending through his committee for about five years after leaving office until it wound down in 2014. It spent money on legal fees, public communications, accounting and political donations. It spent $179,657 in those five years, even though Blunt never again sought public office.

Neither Blunt's or (b) (6) committee spent as much as (b) (6) committee spent in the last quarter alone, when (b) (6) for Missouri reported spending $240,000, mostly on legal fees.

State law requires that candidates only spend campaign cash on campaign matters

<<https://law.justia.com/codes/missouri/2011/titleix/chapter130/section130034>
> . Office holders can spend it on official duties.

(b) (6) who served as director of boards and commissions in the governor's office, began working for (b) (6) for Missouri since January 2018.

Since (b) (6) June resignation, (b) (6) has been paid $5,500 a month and has been reimbursed for around $3,300 worth of mileage, meals, office supplies and other expenses.

(b) (6) said he left his employment with the campaign in February.

The campaign also paid (b) (6) (b) (6) $1,200 on March 1 for "campaign worker compensation, although it is unclear when the services were rendered.

(b) (6) who previously served as "advance lead" in the governor's office, was paid another $1,000 for mileage and other expenses.

Beyond the staff spending, (b) (6) for Missouri also disclosed legal expenses to three law firms.

Chalmers Burch & Adams LLC was paid $12,800.

That's the law firm of Michael Adams, the attorney who helped organize (b) (6) nonprofit, A New Missouri Inc., and who continues to serve as its director.

On Tuesday, Adams won the GOP nomination for secretary of state
<<https://www.courier-journal.com/story/news/politics/elections/kentucky/2019/05/21/kentucky-primary-election-may-2019-secretary-of-state-winners/3667307002/>> in Kentucky. He did not respond to a request for comment by The Star.

Clark Hill PLC, a DC law firm, was paid $56,000.

Husch Blackwell LLP was paid $117,000. This is the firm of (b) (6)

(b) (6) a former Missouri House speaker who represents A New Missouri and (b) (6) campaign.

If he ever does attempt a return to Missouri politics, the allegations of illegal conduct that brought him down will certainly resurface.

(b) (6) was elected in 2016 on a campaign focused on rooting corruption out of Jefferson City.

He was forced from office a year and a half later under threat of impeachment and further criminal prosecution over a series of scandals that enveloped his administration.

(b) (6) was charged with two felonies in St. Louis County - invasion of privacy and computer tampering.

The first felony charge stemmed from accusations by a woman with whom (b) (6) had an affair in 2015.

The woman said under oath both to prosecutors and a legislative committee considering impeachment

<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>>

that (b) (6) taped her hands to pull-up rings in his basement, blindfolded her, spit water into her mouth, ripped open her shirt, pulled down her pants and took a photo without her consent.

She says he also threatened to make the photos public if she ever told anyone about their encounter.

(b) (6) denied any wrongdoing and the charge was eventually dropped

<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212769354.html>>

, with the prosecutor citing statutes of limitation and potentially missing evidence.

The second involved allegations that he illegally used a donor list from veterans charity he founded

<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article209422724.html>>

to jumpstart his political career.

That charge was also dropped as part of a plea deal that forced (b) (6)

from office. <<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/latest-news/article212173834.html>>

VCNO, CNP, CNR,

For Information Only

BLUF: We received media queries today from KC Star and McClatchy Newspapers

regarding former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) and his status in the Navy.

According to the media, (b) (6) is saying he is back in the Navy and "ready to deploy." Initial coverage from KC star included below.

Key Points:

* As a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve, in APR 2019 (b) (6) requested transfer to the selected reserves (SELRES) as an 1105 (General Unrestricted Line) LCDR, and that transfer was approved.

* Transfer to SELRES is an administrative action that does not trigger the "full accession look" of a new accession (i.e. a direct commissioning officer applicant). (b) (6) was only required to complete a physical since his previous one had lapsed over two years, which he completed successfully.

* He will not formally "swear-in" as he never left the United States Navy Reserves. He is currently affiliated with the St. Louis, Missouri NOSC.

* We have coordinated with CNRC PA and provided KC Star the following updated statement: "In April 2019, (b) (6) a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR), requested to transfer his status to the Selected Reserves (SELRES) as a general unrestricted line officer and his transfer was approved. He is currently affiliated with the NOSC in St Louis." They intend to update the story.

BLUF: We received media queries today from KC Star and McClatchy Newspapers regarding former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) and his status in the Navy. According to the media, (b) (6) is saying he is back in the Navy and "ready to deploy." Initial coverage from KC star included below.

Key Points:

* As a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve, in APR 2019 (b) (6) requested transfer to the selected reserves (SELRES) as an 1105 (General Unrestricted Line) LCDR, and that transfer was approved.

* Transfer to SELRES is an administrative action that does not trigger the "full accession look" of a new accession (i.e. a direct commissioning officer applicant). (b) (6) was only required to complete a physical since his previous one had lapsed over two years, which he completed successfully.

* He will not formally "swear-in" as he never left the United States Navy Reserves. He is currently affiliated with the St. Louis, Missouri NOSC.

* We have coordinated with CNRC PA and provided KC Star the following updated statement: "In April 2019, (b) (6) a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR), requested to transfer his status to the Selected Reserves (SELRES) as a general unrestricted line officer and his transfer was approved. He is currently affiliated with the NOSC in St Louis." They intend to update the story.

MAY 22, 2019 05:00 PM, UPDATED 2 MINUTES AGO

Former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) (b) (6) has told friends and supporters in recent weeks that he plans to deploy with the Navy to the Middle East in the fall and hopes his fourth book will be published later this year.

Earlier this month (b) (6) attended a gathering in Franklin County organized by longtime GOP activist (b) (6) (b) (6) where he shared his short-term plans regarding his return to active Navy service and forthcoming book.

(b) (6) has also shared his plans with others in meetings across the state over the past month, multiple sources told The Kansas City Star.

A Navy official said that as of Wednesday, there was no change to (b) (6) status in his personnel file.

(b) (6) is currently on inactive status with the Standby Reserve, which allows him to retain his commission but not to accrue time served to apply towards retirement. The status comes with no pay and does not make him eligible for promotion.

If he is in the process of applying to return to active status, that information would not be made public until a decision is made on whether or not to allow him to reactivate.

Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, which published (b) (6) previous three books, told The Star it does not have anything new from (b) (6) under contract.

(b) (6) could not immediately be reached for comment.

(b) (6) a Republican and former Navy SEAL, resigned from office a year ago
<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212114314.html>>
next week, succumbing to an avalanche of scandals and criminal charges - including accusations that he engaged in violent and coercive sexual misconduct
<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>>
during a 2015 affair.

Despite his exit in disgrace from the governor's office, the specter of his possible return to public life looms over Missouri politics.

(b) (6) has been spotted around the state and in Washington, D.C., in recent weeks, meeting with former staff and political operatives.

Most telling is that his still-active gubernatorial campaign spent roughly $15,000 during the first three months of 2019 on staff salaries and reimbursements for travel, meals and other expenses. The campaign also paid nearly $20,000 worth of reimbursement of older travel expenses to (b) (6)
(b) (6) a longtime (b) (6) friend and former communications adviser.

Many of his former confidantes told The Star they haven't heard any indication from (b) (6) that he's eyeing a return to politics in 2020.

(b) (6) said the picnic gathering where he mentioned his Navy plans was a private party with personal friends and relatives. She was surprised when
(b) (6) agreed to attend, and said the occasion was "absolutely non-political." As far as (b) knows, (b) (6) "is not looking at anything political" in the near future.

But she said there's a faction of grassroots Republican activists who feel (b) (6) was unfairly pushed out and would like to see him run for elective office again.

"I do think that's wishful thinking from people in Missouri," (b) said. "I think there's just rumors all over that people wish he would run, and time will tell...Our election was stolen from us."

(b) (6) managing director of America First MO PAC, said she had heard that (b) (6) was thinking about a run for Senate, possibly for Missouri Sen. Roy Blunt's seat in 2022. She dismissed the idea of a primary challenge to Missouri Gov. Mike Parson in 2020.

(b) (6) "has enemies in Jefferson City that would really work against him. This would be more of clean slate for him," (b) said of a possible Senate run. She said he still has support among grassroots conservatives in the state.

"People think he was run out of Jefferson City and they don't like that," (b) said. "And Blunt's popularity is waning."

As evidence that Blunt could be vulnerable, (b) pointed to the backlash he received from some conservatives

<<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/news/politics-government/congress/article228088>

259.html> after he voted to block President Donald Trump's use of emergency powers to build a border wall.

(b) (6) for Missouri, which was created for his 2016 gubernatorial run, filed an amendment with the Missouri Ethics Commission in May 2018 re-focusing its aim on the 2020 GOP primary for governor.

That tactic is not unusual for a dormant committee, as many former elected officials maintain campaign accounts for years after they leave office.

(b) (6) (b) (6) predecessor, spent $85,239 through his campaign committee for about a year before closing it down. The expenses ranged from donations, hotel and catering fees, software and a portrait.

(b) (6) a one-term governor before (b) (6) kept spending through his committee for about five years after leaving office until it wound down in 2014. It spent money on legal fees, public communications, accounting and political donations. It spent $179,657 in those five years, even though Blunt never again sought public office.

Neither Blunt's or (b) (6) committee spent as much as (b) (6) committee spent in the last quarter alone, when (b) (6) for Missouri reported spending $240,000, mostly on legal fees.

State law requires that candidates only spend campaign cash on campaign matters

<<https://law.justia.com/codes/missouri/2011/titleix/chapter130/section130034>

/> . Office holders can spend it on official duties.

(b) (6) who served as director of boards and commissions in the governor's office, began working for (b) (6) for Missouri since January 2018.

Since (b) (6) June resignation, (b) (6) has been paid $5,500 a month and has been reimbursed for around $3,300 worth of mileage, meals, office supplies and other expenses.

(b) (6) said he left his employment with the campaign in February.

The campaign also paid (b) (6) (b) (6) $1,200 on March 1 for "campaign worker compensation, although it is unclear when the services were rendered.

(b) (6) who previously served as "advance lead" in the governor's office, was paid another $1,000 for mileage and other expenses.

Beyond the staff spending, (b) (6) for Missouri also disclosed legal expenses to three law firms.

Chalmers Burch & Adams LLC was paid $12,800.

That's the law firm of Michael Adams, the attorney who helped organize (b) (6) nonprofit, A New Missouri Inc., and who continues to serve as its director.

On Tuesday, Adams won the GOP nomination for secretary of state
<<https://www.courier-journal.com/story/news/politics/elections/kentucky/2019/05/21/kentucky-primary-election-may-2019-secretary-of-state-winners/3667307002/>> in Kentucky. He did not respond to a request for comment by The Star.

Clark Hill PLC, a DC law firm, was paid $56,000.

Husch Blackwell LLP was paid $117,000. This is the firm of (b) (6)
(b) (6) a former Missouri House speaker who represents A New Missouri and (b) (6) campaign.

If he ever does attempt a return to Missouri politics, the allegations of illegal conduct that brought him down will certainly resurface.

(b) (6) was elected in 2016 on a campaign focused on rooting corruption out of Jefferson City.

He was forced from office a year and a half later under threat of impeachment and further criminal prosecution over a series of scandals that enveloped his administration.

(b) (6) was charged with two felonies in St. Louis County - invasion of privacy and computer tampering.

The first felony charge stemmed from accusations by a woman with whom (b) (6) had an affair in 2015.

The woman said under oath both to prosecutors and a legislative committee considering impeachment

<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>>

that (b) (6) taped her hands to pull-up rings in his basement, blindfolded her, spit water into her mouth, ripped open her shirt, pulled down her pants and took a photo without her consent.

She says he also threatened to make the photos public if she ever told anyone about their encounter.

BLUF: We received media queries today from KC Star and McClatchy Newspapers regarding former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) and his status in the Navy. According to the media, (b) (6) is saying he is back in the Navy and "ready to deploy." Initial coverage from KC star included below.

Key Points:

* As a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve, in APR 2019 (b) (6) requested transfer to the selected reserves (SELRES) as an 1105 (General Unrestricted Line) LCDR, and that transfer was approved.

* Transfer to SELRES is an administrative action that does not trigger the "full accession look" of a new accession (i.e. a direct commissioning officer applicant). (b) (6) was only required to complete a physical since his previous one had lapsed over two years, which he completed successfully.

* He will not formally "swear-in" as he never left the United States Navy Reserves. He is currently affiliated with the St. Louis, Missouri NOSC.

* We have coordinated with CNRC PA and provided KC Star the following updated statement: "In April 2019, (b) (6) a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR), requested to transfer his status to the Selected Reserves (SELRES) as a general unrestricted line officer and his transfer was approved. He is currently affiliated with the NOSC in St Louis." They intend to update the story.

MAY 22, 2019 05:00 PM, UPDATED 2 MINUTES AGO

Former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) has told friends and supporters in recent weeks that he plans to deploy with the Navy to the Middle East in the fall and hopes his fourth book will be published later this year.

Earlier this month (b) (6) attended a gathering in Franklin County organized by longtime GOP activist (b) (6) (b) (6) where he shared his short-term plans regarding his return to active Navy service and forthcoming book.

(b) (6) has also shared his plans with others in meetings across the state over the past month, multiple sources told The Kansas City Star.

A Navy official said that as of Wednesday, there was no change to (b) (6) status in his personnel file.

(b) (6) is currently on inactive status with the Standby Reserve, which allows him to retain his commission but not to accrue time served to apply towards retirement. The status comes with no pay and does not make him eligible for promotion.

If he is in the process of applying to return to active status, that information would not be made public until a decision is made on whether or not to allow him to reactivate.

Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, which published (b) (6) previous three books, told The Star it does not have anything new from (b) (6) under contract.

(b) (6) could not immediately be reached for comment.

(b) (6) a Republican and former Navy SEAL, resigned from office a year ago

next week, succumbing to an avalanche of scandals and criminal charges - including accusations that he engaged in violent and coercive sexual

<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>>

during a 2015 affair.

Despite his exit in disgrace from the governor's office, the specter of his possible return to public life looms over Missouri politics.

(b) (6) has been spotted around the state and in Washington, D.C., in recent weeks, meeting with former staff and political operatives.

Most telling is that his still-active gubernatorial campaign spent roughly $15,000 during the first three months of 2019 on staff salaries and reimbursements for travel, meals and other expenses. The campaign also paid nearly $20,000 worth of reimbursement of older travel expenses to (b) (6) a longtime (b) (6) friend and former communications adviser.

Many of his former confidantes told The Star they haven't heard any indication from (b) (6) that he's eyeing a return to politics in 2020.

(b) (6) said the picnic gathering where he mentioned his Navy plans was a private party with personal friends and relatives. She was surprised when

(b) (6) agreed to attend, and said the occasion was "absolutely non-political." As far as (b) (6) knows, (b) (6) "is not looking at anything political" in the near future.

But she said there's a faction of grassroots Republican activists who feel

(b) (6) was unfairly pushed out and would like to see him run for elective office again.

"I do think that's wishful thinking from people in Missouri," (b) (6) said. "I think there's just rumors all over that people wish he would run, and time will tell...Our election was stolen from us."

(b) (6) managing director of America First MO PAC, said she had heard that (b) (6) was thinking about a run for Senate, possibly for Missouri Sen. Roy Blunt's seat in 2022. She dismissed the idea of a primary challenge to Missouri Gov. Mike Parson in 2020.

(b) (6) "has enemies in Jefferson City that would really work against him. This would be more of clean slate for him," (b) (6) said of a possible Senate run. She said he still has support among grassroots conservatives in the state.

"People think he was run out of Jefferson City and they don't like that,"

(b) (6) said. "And Blunt's popularity is waning."

As evidence that Blunt could be vulnerable, (b) (6) pointed to the backlash he received from some conservatives

<<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/news/politics-government/congress/article228088>

259.html> after he voted to block President Donald Trump's use of emergency powers to build a border wall.

(b) (6) for Missouri, which was created for his 2016 gubernatorial run, filed an amendment with the Missouri Ethics Commission in May 2018 re-focusing its aim on the 2020 GOP primary for governor.

That tactic is not unusual for a dormant committee, as many former elected officials maintain campaign accounts for years after they leave office.

(b) (6) predecessor, spent $85,239 through his campaign committee for about a year before closing it down. The expenses ranged from donations, hotel and catering fees, software and a portrait.

(b) (6) a one-term governor before (b) (6) kept spending through his committee for about five years after leaving office until it wound down in 2014. It spent money on legal fees, public communications, accounting and political donations. It spent $179,657 in those five years, even though Blunt never again sought public office.

Neither Blunt's or (b) (6) committee spent as much as (b) (6) committee spent in the last quarter alone, when (b) (6) for Missouri reported spending $240,000, mostly on legal fees.

State law requires that candidates only spend campaign cash on campaign

matters

/> . Office holders can spend it on official duties.

(b) (6) who served as director of boards and commissions in the governor's office, began working for (b) (6) for Missouri since January 2018.

Since (b) (6) June resignation, (b) (6) has been paid $5,500 a month and has been reimbursed for around $3,300 worth of mileage, meals, office supplies and other expenses.

(b) (6) said he left his employment with the campaign in February.

The campaign also paid (b) (6) (b) (6) $1,200 on March 1 for "campaign worker compensation, although it is unclear when the services were rendered.

(b) (6) who previously served as "advance lead" in the governor's office, was paid another $1,000 for mileage and other expenses.

Beyond the staff spending, (b) (6) for Missouri also disclosed legal expenses to three law firms.

Chalmers Burch & Adams LLC was paid $12,800.

That's the law firm of Michael Adams, the attorney who helped organize

(b) (6) nonprofit, A New Missouri Inc., and who continues to serve as its director.

On Tuesday, Adams won the GOP nomination for secretary of state

Clark Hill PLC, a DC law firm, was paid $56,000.

Husch Blackwell LLP was paid $117,000. This is the firm of (b) (6)

(b) (6) a former Missouri House speaker who represents A New Missouri and (b) (6) campaign.

If he ever does attempt a return to Missouri politics, the allegations of illegal conduct that brought him down will certainly resurface.

(b) (6) was elected in 2016 on a campaign focused on rooting corruption out of Jefferson City.

He was forced from office a year and a half later under threat of impeachment and further criminal prosecution over a series of scandals that enveloped his administration.

(b) (6) was charged with two felonies in St. Louis County - invasion of privacy and computer tampering.

(b) (6) had an affair in 2015.

The woman said under oath both to prosecutors and a legislative committee considering impeachment

<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>>

that (b) (6) taped her hands to pull-up rings in his basement, blindfolded her, spit water into her mouth, ripped open her shirt, pulled down her pants and took a photo without her consent.

She says he also threatened to make the photos public if she ever told anyone about their encounter.

(b) (6) denied any wrongdoing and the charge was eventually dropped

<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212769354.html>>

, with the prosecutor citing statutes of limitation and potentially missing evidence.

The second involved allegations that he illegally used a donor list from veterans charity he founded

<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article209422724.html>>

to jumpstart his political career.

from office. <<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/latest-news/article212173834.html>>

BLUF: We received media queries today from KC Star and McClatchy Newspapers regarding former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) and his status in the Navy. According to the media, (b) (6) is saying he is back in the Navy and "ready to deploy." Initial coverage from KC star included below.

Key Points:

* As a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve, in APR 2019 (b) (6) requested transfer to the selected reserves (SELRES) as an 1105 (General Unrestricted Line) LCDR, and that transfer was approved.

* Transfer to SELRES is an administrative action that does not trigger the "full accession look" of a new accession (i.e. a direct commissioning officer applicant). (b) (6) was only required to complete a physical since his previous one had lapsed over two years, which he completed successfully.

* He will not formally "swear-in" as he never left the United States Navy Reserves. He is currently affiliated with the St. Louis, Missouri NOSC.

* We have coordinated with CNRC PA and provided KC Star the following updated statement: "In April 2019, (b) (6) a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR), requested to transfer his status to the Selected Reserves (SELRES) as a general unrestricted line officer and his transfer was approved. He is currently affiliated with the NOSC in St Louis." They intend to update the story.

MAY 22, 2019 05:00 PM, UPDATED 2 MINUTES AGO

Former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) has told friends and supporters in recent weeks that he plans to deploy with the Navy to the Middle East in the fall and hopes his fourth book will be published later this year.

Earlier this month (b) (6) attended a gathering in Franklin County organized by longtime GOP activist (b) (6) (b) (6) where he shared his short-term plans regarding his return to active Navy service and forthcoming book.

(b) (6) has also shared his plans with others in meetings across the state over the past month, multiple sources told The Kansas City Star.

A Navy official said that as of Wednesday, there was no change to (b) (6) status in his personnel file.

(b) (6) is currently on inactive status with the Standby Reserve, which allows him to retain his commission but not to accrue time served to apply towards retirement. The status comes with no pay and does not make him eligible for promotion.

If he is in the process of applying to return to active status, that information would not be made public until a decision is made on whether or not to allow him to reactivate.

Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, which published (b) (6) previous three books, told The Star it does not have anything new from (b) (6) under contract.

(b) (6) could not immediately be reached for comment.

(b) (6) a Republican and former Navy SEAL, resigned from office a year ago <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212114314.html>> next week, succumbing to an avalanche of scandals and criminal charges - including accusations that he engaged in violent and coercive sexual misconduct <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> during a 2015 affair.

Despite his exit in disgrace from the governor's office, the specter of his possible return to public life looms over Missouri politics.

(b) (6) has been spotted around the state and in Washington, D.C., in recent weeks, meeting with former staff and political operatives.

Most telling is that his still-active gubernatorial campaign spent roughly $15,000 during the first three months of 2019 on staff salaries and reimbursements for travel, meals and other expenses. The campaign also paid nearly $20,000 worth of reimbursement of older travel expenses to (b) (6) a longtime (b) (6) friend and former communications adviser.

Many of his former confidantes told The Star they haven't heard any indication from (b) (6) that he's eyeing a return to politics in 2020.

(b) (6) said the picnic gathering where he mentioned his Navy plans was a private party with personal friends and relatives. She was surprised when (b) (6) agreed to attend, and said the occasion was "absolutely non-political." As far as (b) (6) knows, (b) (6) "is not looking at anything political" in the near future.

But she said there's a faction of grassroots Republican activists who feel (b) (6) was unfairly pushed out and would like to see him run for elective office again.

"I do think that's wishful thinking from people in Missouri," (b) (6) said. "I think there's just rumors all over that people wish he would run, and time will tell...Our election was stolen from us."

(b) (6) managing director of America First MO PAC, said she had heard that (b) (6) was thinking about a run for Senate, possibly for Missouri Sen. Roy Blunt's seat in 2022. She dismissed the idea of a primary challenge to Missouri Gov. Mike Parson in 2020.

(b) (6) "has enemies in Jefferson City that would really work against him. This would be more of clean slate for him," (b) (6) said of a possible Senate run. She said he still has support among grassroots conservatives in the state.

"People think he was run out of Jefferson City and they don't like that," (b) (6) said. "And Blunt's popularity is waning."

As evidence that Blunt could be vulnerable, (b) (6) pointed to the backlash he received from some conservatives
<<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/news/politics-government/congress/article228088259.html>> after he voted to block President Donald Trump's use of emergency powers to build a border wall.

(b) (6) for Missouri, which was created for his 2016 gubernatorial run, filed an amendment with the Missouri Ethics Commission in May 2018 re-focusing its aim on the 2020 GOP primary for governor.

That tactic is not unusual for a dormant committee, as many former elected officials maintain campaign accounts for years after they leave office.

(b) (6) predecessor, spent $85,239 through his campaign committee for about a year before closing it down. The expenses ranged from donations, hotel and catering fees, software and a portrait.

(b) (6) a one-term governor before (b) (6) kept spending through his committee for about five years after leaving office until it wound down in 2014. It spent money on legal fees, public communications, accounting and political donations. It spent $179,657 in those five years, even though Blunt never again sought public office.

Neither Blunt's or (b) (6) committee spent as much as (b) (6) committee spent in the last quarter alone, when (b) (6) for Missouri reported spending $240,000, mostly on legal fees.

State law requires that candidates only spend campaign cash on campaign matters
<<https://law.justia.com/codes/missouri/2011/titleix/chapter130/section130034>
> . Office holders can spend it on official duties.

(b) (6) who served as director of boards and commissions in the governor's office, began working for (b) (6) for Missouri since January 2018.

Since (b) (6) June resignation, (b) (6) has been paid $5,500 a month and has been reimbursed for around $3,300 worth of mileage, meals, office supplies and other expenses.

(b) (6) said he left his employment with the campaign in February.

The campaign also paid (b) (6) $1,200 on March 1 for "campaign worker compensation, although it is unclear when the services were rendered. (b) (6) who previously served as "advance lead" in the governor's office, was paid another $1,000 for mileage and other expenses.

Beyond the staff spending, (b) (6) for Missouri also disclosed legal expenses to three law firms.

Chalmers Burch & Adams LLC was paid $12,800.

That's the law firm of Michael Adams, the attorney who helped organize (b) (6) nonprofit, A New Missouri Inc., and who continues to serve as its director.

On Tuesday, Adams won the GOP nomination for secretary of state

Clark Hill PLC, a DC law firm, was paid $56,000.

Husch Blackwell LLP was paid $117,000. This is the firm of (b) (6) a former Missouri House speaker who represents A New Missouri and (b) (6) campaign.

If he ever does attempt a return to Missouri politics, the allegations of illegal conduct that brought him down will certainly resurface.

(b) (6) was elected in 2016 on a campaign focused on rooting corruption out of Jefferson City.

He was forced from office a year and a half later under threat of impeachment and further criminal prosecution over a series of scandals that enveloped his administration.

(b) (6) was charged with two felonies in St. Louis County - invasion of privacy and computer tampering.

The first felony charge stemmed from accusations by a woman with whom (b) (6) had an affair in 2015.

The woman said under oath both to prosecutors and a legislative committee considering impeachment <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> that (b) (6) taped her hands to pull-up rings in his basement, blindfolded her, spit water into her mouth, ripped open her shirt, pulled down her pants and took a photo without her consent.

She says he also threatened to make the photos public if she ever told anyone about their encounter.

(b) (6) denied any wrongdoing and the charge was eventually dropped <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212769354.html>> , with the prosecutor citing statutes of limitation and potentially missing evidence.

The second involved allegations that he illegally used a donor list from veterans charity he founded <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article209422724.html>> to jumpstart his political career.

That charge was also dropped as part of a plea deal that forced (b) (6) from office. <<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/latest-news/article212173834.html>>

BLUF: We received media queries today from KC Star and McClatchy Newspapers regarding former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) and his status in the Navy. According to the media, (b) (6) is saying he is back in the Navy and "ready to deploy." Initial coverage from KC star included below.

Key Points:

* As a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve, in APR 2019 (b) (6) requested transfer to the selected reserves (SELRES) as an 1105 (General Unrestricted Line) LCDR, and that transfer was approved.

* Transfer to SELRES is an administrative action that does not trigger the "full accession look" of a new accession (i.e. a direct commissioning officer applicant). (b) (6) was only required to complete a physical since his previous one had lapsed over two years, which he completed successfully.

* He will not formally "swear-in" as he never left the United States Navy Reserves. He is currently affiliated with the St. Louis, Missouri NOSC.

* We have coordinated with CNRC PA and provided KC Star the following updated statement: "In April 2019, (b) (6) a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR), requested to transfer his status to the Selected Reserves (SELRES) as a general unrestricted line officer and his transfer was approved. He is currently affiliated with the NOSC in St Louis." They intend to update the story.

MAY 22, 2019 05:00 PM, UPDATED 2 MINUTES AGO

Former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) has told friends and supporters in recent weeks that he plans to deploy with the Navy to the Middle East in the fall and hopes his fourth book will be published later this year.

Earlier this month (b) (6) attended a gathering in Franklin County organized by longtime GOP activist (b) (6) (b) (6) where he shared his short-term plans regarding his return to active Navy service and forthcoming book.

(b) (6) has also shared his plans with others in meetings across the state over the past month, multiple sources told The Kansas City Star.

A Navy official said that as of Wednesday, there was no change to (b) (6) status in his personnel file.

(b) (6) is currently on inactive status with the Standby Reserve, which allows him to retain his commission but not to accrue time served to apply towards retirement. The status comes with no pay and does not make him eligible for promotion.

If he is in the process of applying to return to active status, that information would not be made public until a decision is made on whether or not to allow him to reactivate.

Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, which published (b) (6) previous three books, told The Star it does not have anything new from (b) (6) under contract.

(b) (6) could not immediately be reached for comment.

(b) (6) a Republican and former Navy SEAL, resigned from office a year ago <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212114314.html>> next week, succumbing to an avalanche of scandals and criminal charges - including accusations that he engaged in violent and coercive sexual misconduct <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>>

during a 2015 affair.

Despite his exit in disgrace from the governor's office, the specter of his possible return to public life looms over Missouri politics.

(b) (6) has been spotted around the state and in Washington, D.C., in recent weeks, meeting with former staff and political operatives.

Most telling is that his still-active gubernatorial campaign spent roughly $15,000 during the first three months of 2019 on staff salaries and reimbursements for travel, meals and other expenses. The campaign also paid nearly $20,000 worth of reimbursement of older travel expenses to (b) (6) a longtime (b) (6) friend and former communications adviser (b) (6).

Many of his former confidantes told The Star they haven't heard any indication from (b) (6) that he's eyeing a return to politics in 2020.

(b) (6) said the picnic gathering where he mentioned his Navy plans was a private party with personal friends and relatives. She was surprised when (b) (6) agreed to attend, and said the occasion was "absolutely non-political." As far as (b) (6) knows, (b) (6) "is not looking at anything political" in the near future.

But she said there's a faction of grassroots Republican activists who feel (b) (6) was unfairly pushed out and would like to see him run for elective office again.

"I do think that's wishful thinking from people in Missouri," (b) (6) said. "I think there's just rumors all over that people wish he would run, and time will tell...Our election was stolen from us."

(b) (6) managing director of America First MO PAC, said she had heard that (b) (6) was thinking about a run for Senate, possibly for Missouri Sen. Roy Blunt's seat in 2022. She dismissed the idea of a primary challenge to Missouri Gov. Mike Parson in 2020.

(b) (6) "has enemies in Jefferson City that would really work against him. This would be more of clean slate for him," (b) (6) said of a possible Senate run. She said he still has support among grassroots conservatives in the state.

"People think he was run out of Jefferson City and they don't like that," (b) (6) said. "And Blunt's popularity is waning."

As evidence that Blunt could be vulnerable, (b) (6) pointed to the backlash he received from some conservatives
<<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/news/politics-government/congress/article228088259.html>> after he voted to block President Donald Trump's use of emergency powers to build a border wall.

(b) (6) for Missouri, which was created for his 2016 gubernatorial run, filed an amendment with the Missouri Ethics Commission in May 2018 re-focusing its aim on the 2020 GOP primary for governor.

That tactic is not unusual for a dormant committee, as many former elected officials maintain campaign accounts for years after they leave office.

(b) (6) predecessor, spent $85,239 through his campaign committee for about a year before closing it down. The expenses ranged from donations, hotel and catering fees, software and a portrait.

(b) (6) a one-term governor before (b) (6) kept spending through his committee for about five years after leaving office until it wound down in 2014. It spent money on legal fees, public communications, accounting and political donations. It spent $179,657 in those five years, even though Blunt never again sought public office.

Neither Blunt's or (b) (6) committee spent as much as (b) (6) committee spent in the last quarter alone, when (b) (6) for Missouri reported spending $240,000, mostly on legal fees.

State law requires that candidates only spend campaign cash on campaign matters
<<https://law.justia.com/codes/missouri/2011/titleix/chapter130/section130034>
> . Office holders can spend it on official duties.

(b) (6) who served as director of boards and commissions in the governor's office, began working for (b) (6) for Missouri since January 2018.

Since (b) (6) June resignation, (b) (6) has been paid $5,500 a month and has been reimbursed for around $3,300 worth of mileage, meals, office supplies and other expenses.

(b) (6) said he left his employment with the campaign in February.

The campaign also paid (b) (6) $1,200 on March 1 for "campaign worker compensation, although it is unclear when the services were rendered. (b) (6) who previously served as "advance lead" in the governor's office, was paid another $1,000 for mileage and other expenses.

Beyond the staff spending, (b) (6) for Missouri also disclosed legal expenses to three law firms.

Chalmers Burch & Adams LLC was paid $12,800.

That's the law firm of Michael Adams, the attorney who helped organize (b) (6) nonprofit, A New Missouri Inc., and who continues to serve as its director.

On Tuesday, Adams won the GOP nomination for secretary of state

Clark Hill PLC, a DC law firm, was paid $56,000.

Husch Blackwell LLP was paid $117,000. This is the firm of (b) (6) a former Missouri House speaker who represents A New Missouri and (b) (6) campaign.

If he ever does attempt a return to Missouri politics, the allegations of illegal conduct that brought him down will certainly resurface.

(b) (6) was elected in 2016 on a campaign focused on rooting corruption out of Jefferson City.

He was forced from office a year and a half later under threat of impeachment and further criminal prosecution over a series of scandals that enveloped his administration.

(b) (6) was charged with two felonies in St. Louis County - invasion of privacy and computer tampering.

The first felony charge stemmed from accusations by a woman with whom (b) (6) had an affair in 2015.

The woman said under oath both to prosecutors and a legislative committee considering impeachment <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> that (b) (6) taped her hands to pull-up rings in his basement, blindfolded her, spit water into her mouth, ripped open her shirt, pulled down her pants and took a photo without her consent.

She says he also threatened to make the photos public if she ever told anyone about their encounter.

(b) (6) denied any wrongdoing and the charge was eventually dropped <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212769354.html>> , with the prosecutor citing statutes of limitation and potentially missing evidence.

The second involved allegations that he illegally used a donor list from veterans charity he founded <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article209422724.html>> to jumpstart his political career.

That charge was also dropped as part of a plea deal that forced (b) (6) from office. <<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/latest-news/article212173834.html>>

Despite his exit in disgrace from the governor's office, the specter of his possible return to public life looms over Missouri politics.

(b) (6) has been spotted around the state and in Washington, D.C., in recent weeks, meeting with former staff and political operatives.

Most telling is that his still-active gubernatorial campaign spent roughly $15,000 during the first three months of 2019 on staff salaries and reimbursements for travel, meals and other expenses. The campaign also paid nearly $20,000 worth of reimbursement of older travel expenses to (b) (6) a longtime (b) (6) friend and former communications adviser (b) (6)

Many of his former confidantes told The Star they haven't heard any indication from (b) (6) that he's eyeing a return to politics in 2020.

(b) (6) said the picnic gathering where he mentioned his Navy plans was a private party with personal friends and relatives. She was surprised when (b) (6) agreed to attend, and said the occasion was "absolutely non-political." As far as (b) (6) knows, (b) (6) "is not looking at anything political" in the near future.

But she said there's a faction of grassroots Republican activists who feel (b) (6) was unfairly pushed out and would like to see him run for elective office again.

"I do think that's wishful thinking from people in Missouri," (b) (6) said. "I think there's just rumors all over that people wish he would run, and time will tell...Our election was stolen from us."

(b) (6) managing director of America First MO PAC, said she had heard that (b) (6) was thinking about a run for Senate, possibly for Missouri Sen. Roy Blunt's seat in 2022. She dismissed the idea of a primary challenge to Missouri Gov. Mike Parson in 2020.

(b) (6) "has enemies in Jefferson City that would really work against him. This would be more of clean slate for him," (b) (6) said of a possible Senate run. She said he still has support among grassroots conservatives in the state.

"People think he was run out of Jefferson City and they don't like that," (b) (6) said. "And Blunt's popularity is waning."

As evidence that Blunt could be vulnerable, (b) (6) pointed to the backlash he received from some conservatives
<<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/news/politics-government/congress/article228088259.html>> after he voted to block President Donald Trump's use of emergency powers to build a border wall.

(b) (6) for Missouri, which was created for his 2016 gubernatorial run, filed an amendment with the Missouri Ethics Commission in May 2018 re-focusing its aim on the 2020 GOP primary for governor.

That tactic is not unusual for a dormant committee, as many former elected officials maintain campaign accounts for years after they leave office.

(b) (6) (b) (6) predecessor, spent $85,239 through his campaign committee for about a year before closing it down. The expenses ranged from donations, hotel and catering fees, software and a portrait.

(b) (6) a one-term governor before (b) (6) kept spending through his committee for about five years after leaving office until it wound down in 2014. It spent money on legal fees, public communications, accounting and political donations. It spent $179,657 in those five years, even though Blunt never again sought public office.

Neither Blunt's or (b) (6) committee spent as much as (b) (6) committee spent in the last quarter alone, when (b) (6) for Missouri reported spending $240,000, mostly on legal fees.

State law requires that candidates only spend campaign cash on campaign matters
<<https://law.justia.com/codes/missouri/2011/titleix/chapter130/section130034>> . Office holders can spend it on official duties.

(b) (6) who served as director of boards and commissions in the governor's office, began working for (b) (6) for Missouri since January 2018.

Since (b) (6) June resignation, (b) (6) has been paid $5,500 a month and has been reimbursed for around $3,300 worth of mileage, meals, office supplies and other expenses.

(b) (6) said he left his employment with the campaign in February.

The campaign also paid (b) (6) $1,200 on March 1 for "campaign worker compensation, although it is unclear when the services were rendered.

(b) (6) who previously served as "advance lead" in the governor's office, was paid another $1,000 for mileage and other expenses.

Beyond the staff spending, (b) (6) for Missouri also disclosed legal expenses to three law firms.

Chalmers Burch & Adams LLC was paid $12,800.

That's the law firm of Michael Adams, the attorney who helped organize (b) (6) nonprofit, A New Missouri Inc., and who continues to serve as its director.

On Tuesday, Adams won the GOP nomination for secretary of state

Clark Hill PLC, a DC law firm, was paid $56,000.

Husch Blackwell LLP was paid $117,000. This is the firm of (b) (6) a former Missouri House speaker who represents A New Missouri and (b) (6) campaign.

If he ever does attempt a return to Missouri politics, the allegations of illegal conduct that brought him down will certainly resurface.

(b) (6) was elected in 2016 on a campaign focused on rooting corruption out of Jefferson City.

He was forced from office a year and a half later under threat of impeachment and further criminal prosecution over a series of scandals that enveloped his administration.

(b) (6) was charged with two felonies in St. Louis County - invasion of privacy and computer tampering.

The first felony charge stemmed from accusations by a woman with whom (b) (6) had an affair in 2015.

The woman said under oath both to prosecutors and a legislative committee considering impeachment <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> that (b) (6) taped her hands to pull-up rings in his basement, blindfolded her, spit water into her mouth, ripped open her shirt, pulled down her pants and took a photo without her consent.

She says he also threatened to make the photos public if she ever told anyone about their encounter.

(b) (6) denied any wrongdoing and the charge was eventually dropped <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212769354.html>> , with the prosecutor citing statutes of limitation and potentially missing evidence.

The second involved allegations that he illegally used a donor list from veterans charity he founded <<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article209422724.html>> to jumpstart his political career.

That charge was also dropped as part of a plea deal that forced (b) (6) from office. <<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/latest-news/article212173834.html>>

BLUF: We received media queries today from KC Star and McClatchy Newspapers regarding former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) and his status in the Navy. According to the media, (b) (6) is saying he is back in the Navy and "ready to deploy." Initial coverage from KC star included below.

Key Points:

* As a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve, in APR 2019 (b) (6) requested transfer to the selected reserves (SELRES) as an 1105 (General Unrestricted Line) LCDR, and that transfer was approved.

* Transfer to SELRES is an administrative action that does not trigger the "full accession look" of a new accession (i.e. a direct commissioning officer applicant). (b) (6) was only required to complete a physical since his previous one had lapsed over two years, which he completed successfully.

* He will not formally "swear-in" as he never left the United States Navy Reserves. He is currently affiliated with the St. Louis, Missouri NOSC.

* We have coordinated with CNRC PA and provided KC Star the following updated statement: "In April 2019, (b) (6) a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR), requested to transfer his status to the Selected Reserves (SELRES) as a general unrestricted line officer and his transfer was approved. He is currently affiliated with the NOSC in St Louis.” They intend to update the story.

(b) (6) says he’s making his return ... to the Navy, sources tell The Star

BY (b) (6) (b) (6) (b) (6) AND TARA COPP

MAY 22, 2019 05:00 PM, UPDATED 2 MINUTES AGO

Former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) (b) (6) has told friends and supporters in recent weeks that he plans to deploy with the Navy to the Middle East in the fall and hopes his fourth book will be published later this year.

Earlier this month (b) (6) attended a gathering in Franklin County organized by longtime GOP activist (b) (6) (b) (6) where he shared his short-term plans regarding his return to active Navy service and forthcoming book.

(b) (6) has also shared his plans with others in meetings across the state over the past month, multiple sources told The Kansas City Star.

A Navy official said that as of Wednesday, there was no change to (b) (6) status in his personnel file.

(b) (6) is currently on inactive status with the Standby Reserve, which allows him to retain his commission but not to accrue time served to apply towards retirement. The status comes with no pay and does not make him eligible for promotion.

If he is in the process of applying to return to active status, that information would not be made public until a decision is made on whether or not to allow him to reactivate.

Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, which published (b) (6) previous three books, told The Star it does not have anything new from (b) (6) under contract.

(b) (6) could not immediately be reached for comment.

VCNO, CNP, CNR,

For Information Only

BLUF: We received media queries today from KC Star and McClatchy Newspapers regarding former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) and his status in the Navy. According to the media, (b) (6) is saying he is back in the Navy and "ready to deploy." Initial coverage from KC star included below.

Key Points:

* As a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve, in APR 2019 (b) (6) requested transfer to the selected reserves (SELRES) as an 1105 (General Unrestricted Line) LCDR, and that transfer was approved.

* Transfer to SELRES is an administrative action that does not trigger the "full accession look" of a new accession (i.e. a direct commissioning officer applicant). (b) (6) was only required to complete a physical since his previous one had lapsed over two years, which he completed successfully.

* He will not formally "swear-in" as he never left the United States Navy Reserves. He is currently affiliated with the St. Louis, Missouri NOSC.

* We have coordinated with CNRC PA and provided KC Star the following updated statement: "In April 2019, (b) (6) a LCDR in the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR), requested to transfer his status to the Selected Reserves (SELRES) as a general unrestricted line officer and his transfer was approved. He is currently affiliated with the NOSC in St Louis." They intend to update the story.

(b) (6) says he's making his return ... to the Navy, sources tell The Star

BY (b) (6) mailto:\(b\) \(6\)@kcstar.com (6)@kcstar.com)> (b) (6) mailto:\(b\) \(6\)@mcclatchydc.com (6)@mcclatchydc.com)>, (b) (6) mailto:\(b\) \(6\)@kcstar.com (6)@kcstar.com)>, AND TARA COPP<<mailto:tcopp@mcclatchydc.com>>
MAY 22, 2019 05:00 PM, UPDATED 2 MINUTES AGO

Former Missouri Gov. (b) (6) has told friends and supporters in recent weeks that he plans to deploy with the Navy to the Middle East in the fall and hopes his fourth book will be published later this year.

Earlier this month (b) (6) attended a gathering in Franklin County organized by longtime GOP activist (b) (6) where he shared his short-term plans regarding his return to active Navy service and forthcoming book.

(b) (6) has also shared his plans with others in meetings across the state over the past month, multiple sources told The Kansas City Star.

A Navy official said that as of Wednesday, there was no change to (b) (6) status in his personnel file.

(b) (6) is currently on inactive status with the Standby Reserve, which allows him to retain his commission but not to accrue time served to apply towards retirement. The status comes with no pay and does not make him eligible for promotion.

If he is in the process of applying to return to active status, that information would not be made public until a decision is made on whether or not to allow him to reactivate.

Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, which published (b) (6) previous three books, told The Star it does not have anything new from (b) (6) under contract.

(b) (6) could not immediately be reached for comment.

(b) (6) a Republican and former Navy SEAL, resigned from office a year ago<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212114314.html>> next week, succumbing to an avalanche of scandals and criminal charges — including accusations that he engaged in violent and coercive sexual misconduct<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> during a 2015 affair.

Despite his exit in disgrace from the governor's office, the specter of his possible return to public life looms over Missouri politics.

(b) (6) has been spotted around the state and in Washington, D.C., in recent weeks, meeting with former staff and political operatives.

Most telling is that his still-active gubernatorial campaign spent roughly $15,000 during the first three months of 2019 on staff salaries and reimbursements for travel, meals and other expenses. The campaign also paid nearly $20,000 worth of reimbursement of older travel expenses to (b) (6) a longtime (b) (6) friend and former communications adviser.

Many of his former confidantes told The Star they haven't heard any indication from (b) (6) that he's eyeing a return to politics in 2020.

(b) (6) said the picnic gathering where he mentioned his Navy plans was a private party with personal friends and relatives. She was surprised when (b) (6) agreed to attend, and said the occasion was “absolutely non-political.” As far as (b) (6) knows, (b) (6) “is not looking at anything political” in the near future.

But she said there’s a faction of grassroots Republican activists who feel (b) (6) was unfairly pushed out and would like to see him run for elective office again.

“I do think that’s wishful thinking from people in Missouri,” (b) (6) said. “I think there’s just rumors all over that people wish he would run, and time will tell...Our election was stolen from us.”

(b) (6) managing director of America First MO PAC, said she had heard that (b) (6) was thinking about a run for Senate, possibly for Missouri Sen. Roy Blunt’s seat in 2022. She dismissed the idea of a primary challenge to Missouri Gov. Mike Parson in 2020.

(b) (6) “has enemies in Jefferson City that would really work against him. This would be more of clean slate for him,” (b) (6) said of a possible Senate run. She said he still has support among grassroots conservatives in the state.

“People think he was run out of Jefferson City and they don’t like that,” (b) (6) said. “And Blunt’s popularity is waning.”

As evidence that Blunt could be vulnerable, (b) (6) pointed to the backlash he received from some conservatives<<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/news/politics-government/congress/article228088259.html>> after he voted to block President Donald Trump’s use of emergency powers to build a border wall.

(b) (6) for Missouri, which was created for his 2016 gubernatorial run, filed an amendment with the Missouri Ethics Commission in May 2018 re-focusing its aim on the 2020 GOP primary for governor.

That tactic is not unusual for a dormant committee, as many former elected officials maintain campaign accounts for years after they leave office.

(b) (6) (b) (6) predecessor, spent $85,239 through his campaign committee for about a year before closing it down. The expenses ranged from donations, hotel and catering fees, software and a portrait.

(b) (6) a one-term governor before (b) (6) kept spending through his committee for about five years after leaving office until it wound down in 2014. It spent money on legal fees, public communications, accounting and political donations. It spent $179,657 in those five years, even though Blunt never again sought public office.

Neither Blunt’s or (b) (6) committee spent as much as (b) (6) committee spent in the last quarter alone, when (b) (6) for Missouri reported spending $240,000, mostly on legal fees.

State law requires that candidates only spend campaign cash on campaign matters<<https://law.justia.com/codes/missouri/2011/titleix/chapter130/section130034/>>. Office holders can spend it on official duties.

(b) (6) who served as director of boards and commissions in the governor’s office, began working for (b) (6) for Missouri since January 2018.

Since (b) (6) June resignation, (b) (6) has been paid $5,500 a month and has been reimbursed for around $3,300 worth of mileage, meals, office supplies and other expenses.

(b) (6) said he left his employment with the campaign in February.

The campaign also paid (b) (6) (b) (6) $1,200 on March 1 for “campaign worker compensation, although it is unclear when the services were rendered. (b) (6) who previously served as “advance lead” in the governor’s office, was paid another $1,000 for mileage and other expenses.

Beyond the staff spending, (b) (6) for Missouri also disclosed legal expenses to three law firms.

Chalmers Burch & Adams LLC was paid $12,800.

That's the law firm of Michael Adams, the attorney who helped organize (b) (6) nonprofit, A New Missouri Inc., and who continues to serve as its director.

On Tuesday, Adams won the GOP nomination for secretary of state<<https://www.courier-journal.com/story/news/politics/elections/kentucky/2019/05/21/kentucky-primary-election-may-2019-secretary-of-state-winners/3667307002/>> in Kentucky. He did not respond to a request for comment by The Star.

Clark Hill PLC, a DC law firm, was paid $56,000.

Husch Blackwell LLP was paid $117,000. This is the firm of (b) (6) a former Missouri House speaker who represents A New Missouri and (b) (6) campaign.

If he ever does attempt a return to Missouri politics, the allegations of illegal conduct that brought him down will certainly resurface.

(b) (6) was elected in 2016 on a campaign focused on rooting corruption out of Jefferson City.

He was forced from office a year and a half later under threat of impeachment and further criminal prosecution over a series of scandals that enveloped his administration.

(b) (6) was charged with two felonies in St. Louis County — invasion of privacy and computer tampering.

The first felony charge stemmed from accusations by a woman with whom (b) (6) had an affair in 2015.

The woman said under oath both to prosecutors and a legislative committee considering impeachment<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article208375284.html>> that (b) (6) taped her hands to pull-up rings in his basement, blindfolded her, spit water into her mouth, ripped open her shirt, pulled down her pants and took a photo without her consent.

She says he also threatened to make the photos public if she ever told anyone about their encounter.

(b) (6) denied any wrongdoing and the charge was eventually dropped<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article212769354.html>>, with the prosecutor citing statutes of limitation and potentially missing evidence.

The second involved allegations that he illegally used a donor list from veterans charity he founded<<https://www.kansascity.com/news/politics-government/article209422724.html>>to jumpstart his political career.

That charge was also dropped as part of a plea deal that forced (b) (6) from office.

Subject: NRC high-interest items- 12 March

Boss, Juliet, John, Huge,

Navy Times (NEW). Navy Times is working a story on CDR (b) (6), former CO of Michigan after FOIA'ing the NRC IG investigation, which had prompted his relief for loss of confidence. Good coord btwn all PAO's: CHINFO, CNP, NPC, NETC. Anticipate reviewing our response tomorrow.

(b) (6) (UPDATED) Big thank you to Huge and his team for the quick work on (b) (6). He is now reactivated in the reserves as a General Line Officer.

ENS (b) (6) (UPDATED): ENS (b) (6) is planning a second swearing-in on 30 March to be officiated at the White House by Vice President Pence.

Mr. (b) (6) (NO CHANGE): Mr. (b) (6) is still in the medical review process and needs to produce several documents for a full evaluation. While not trying to influence the process, I would say that his current health would not warrant a waiver. Will however continue until we have a full evaluation.

FNSV/ESP (NO CHANGE): Double-checked w/ (b) (6) Senior Director for Security in DUSN Office, and he doesn't have an answer yet on how they will pass the funding to OSD so that they can hire the 7-8 contractors for Navy/Marine Corps part in the Expedited Screening Protocol (formerly FNSV).

Nuclear Field Recruiting. (UPDATED): The second trimester remains challenging, but thanks to good coord with Naval Reactors, we have seen some promising returns. March results thus far are:

Nuke Field shipping- 140 against a goal of 247 (-107)

Nuke Field new contracts- 78 against a goal of 280 (-211)

We are working closely with the NR line locker to pull every lever we can to increase throughput.

Transgender Ban (NO CHANGE). We are ready to execute with the D+30 plan as briefed.

CRM (UPDATED): OPNAV N1ED, NRC, NPC, NMCC, PMW240, and contract vendors are meeting this week in Millington for the CRM Integration Contract Post Award Conference. This acquisition milestone assists the Government and contractor in achieving a clear and mutual understanding of the contractual requirements. We are in a very good position because of our ongoing CRM configuration and integration pilot. Over 1200 leads have transferred from NALTS to CRM via the newly implemented interface.

I'm standing by for any questions you may have.

We are working closely with the NR line locker to pull every lever we can to increase throughput.

ENS (b) (6) (UPDATE): ENS (b) (6) is planning an "official" swearing-in and has invited the President and/or former SECDEF Mattis to do the honors. We have been told to expect this ceremony to occur on either 22 or 23 March.

CAPT,

Per below, LCDR (b) (6) is happy to be drilling again. I've attached his response FYSA so you have his number. You can also see that he's still working his BNR. Thank you again for all the great coordination. I will pass along anything I hear.

Thank you! I'm grateful to you and to your whole team for making this happen.

I look forward to speaking with the Community Manager at his convenience. He can reach me here, or via call or text at: (b) (6)

The timing on this is great. I'm actually headed to DC next week, and will be meeting with a few of the folks who may be making a BNR. I'll keep you posted as things move forward.

Again, my great thanks to you and to your team. If I can ever be of assistance to you, it would be an honor to help in any way I can.

Very Respectfully,

Boss,
We're coord with RESFOR O6 PAO. They will be reaching out to ENS (b) (6) unit to get fidelity on the exact 5Ws of his official swearing-in ceremony. If POTUS or former SECDEF attend, I expect media coverage- at the very least, Washington Post and/or Politico, since they've run comprehensive stories on him in the past.

More to follow once RESFOR PAO gets back to us - should hopefully know more this week.

Sir,

I spoke to the RESFOR O6 PAO today and they will be reaching out to ENS (b) (6) unit to get fidelity on the exact 5Ws of his official swearing-in ceremony. If POTUS or former SECDEF attend, I expect media coverage- at the very least, Washington Post and/or Politico since they've run comprehensive stories on him in the past.

More to follow once RESFOR PAO gets back to me - I should hopefully know more this week.

Very Respectfully,

I'll have the recruiter, LT (b) (6) complete the designator change form and submit everything we have to LCDR (b) (6) unless you'd like it to go to someone else.

Many thanks again for your help and information, it made the call go very smoothly!

Boss,

On way back from CFMCC, report sent SEPCOR. You'll see my response to CNO's question about the Boston University Law School mini-protest of the JAG recruiters. OJAG and his team are treating it like a one-off and so am I. But we'll keep a close eye on it. These kind of things can go viral quickly in this day and age. It's important that everyone is trained up on the policies.

On shipping, we're on track for overall AC numbers. Still about 40 behind for Nukes. This is my main effort and we're doing everything we can to make goal. When I assess our Feb performance, I'll push up any other policy initiatives we might need going forward.

Reserve Recruiting. We are developing a series of videos of Sailors, who are discussing their reasons for joining the Reserves on leaving active duty. Our plans are to place these videos on CHINFO's website and Facebook, so we have a way to hit current Sailors (vice our external audience). We'll also put the content on YouTube, which has surpassed Google as the number one search engine for young adults. NRC M & A prospectus attached: Details Local Spot Radio, Out of Home marketing (billboards/signs), Display/Video, Social, and Military Times in six fleet areas. We plan to run a 6-month pilot with the following: Military Times Ads; Jacksonville Radio & Billboards; Norfolk Radio & Billboards; and San Diego Radio & Billboards for a total of $1.18M. The timeline (inclusive of production) is to go live 1 April with radio ads, and 15 April with OOH (billboard) and print (military times). We'll assess ROI as we go to determine if we want to expand the locations beyond the above 3 concentration areas.

Military Service Obligation: Working with N13R and OCNR EA on the staffing of an official request to create a RC obligation as part of a sailors initial AC MSO, similar to an Academy/NROTC contract. RC will hold the hammer as to whether the obligation is served active or inactive.

VTU to Pay Initiative. With the release of ALNAVRESFOR 020-18 message, our Prior Service Directorate has teamed up with the ECMs, NOSC, and PS Service Recruiters to place eligible VTU Sailors into paid billets. This addresses both ES and vacant billets. This is a win-win because these Sailors who are HYT can now compete for advancement as long as they are not HYT for the next higher paygrade and makes them eligible for drill-pay, AT/E-AT, etc.; the ECMS can fill billets and end-strength quotas that are not being filled by initial Reserve affiliations; and finally, allows NRC to count these Sailors toward the Prior Service goal due to quota and billet consumption.

(b) (6) Former Governor (b) (6) has agreed to change designators to General Unrestricted Line Officer. This will speed the process as he merely needs PERS-9 to bottom-line the change.

(b) (6) ENS (b) (6) is shooting for Mar 22nd or 23rd to do a "formal" commissioning ceremony with former SECDEF Mattis presiding. We will pass details once we have them.

CAPT (b) (6), CNP's new EA stopped by NRC for an in brief. (b) (6) and (b) (6) took him through our command brief and brought him up to speed on current issues.

American Samoa. In the quest to harvest the last pockets of higher unemployment in the US and territories, I sent Commodore Oloughlin out to Samoa along with the MEPS Western Region Commander. We don't have a presence on the island, but I have been looking to expand out there for a number of reasons. First, Samoa is Army's #1 recruiting station. The island has the highest unemployment rate of any state or territory. The Samoan youth are highly propensed to join the services, but we learned that they are discouraged because the Army seemed to be their only opportunity. We think we could provide a better choice for many young Samoan men and women and I'm keen to expand our presence there. MTF as I figure out a strategy for Samoa.

Brendan

Sir,

Please engage with CAPT (b) (6) and let him share his professional thoughts prior to you requesting a brief. Or you can engage with our front office but my opinion is that our front office will ask CAPT (b) (6)'s opinion on when is the proper time for a brief.

Also, the email below and the original attachment lays out the strategy, target audience and next steps (all suggested by your team except for the videos). The only part that is lacking is the mock-ups for the billboards/signs and printed ads. That can be sent to you for editing before we launch.

What I can tell you is that ADM McLane is OCONUS and that NRC has 2 MAJOR events happening for the next 2 weeks - SWARM Mobile (25Feb-5March) and SWARM Minneapolis (05-12March). Pausing until we can get schedules aligned may delay the mockups or other deliverables from the Advertising Agency.

The Ad agency is a professional team of career marketers who are contracted to do this very thing. They are not in-house to NRC but a total separate entity who also represents civilian entities. Their experience and expertise is invaluable.

CAPT (b) (6) is copied on the email and so is the EA.

(b) (6), thanks for sharing. As we discussed, I'd like to ask that we set up another concall with the marketing team so that we are all able to understand the timeline and next steps, as well as provide input/feedback on content/messaging.

This really needs to be briefed to CNR by the team so that he is able to understand the strategy and details...and it affords the opportunity for him to provide feedback/direction. You all are doing amazing things down there and I know this is a fast moving train, but given the importance and the newness of this effort, I think you would agree, this approach/request makes good sense.

Pls socialize with your chain and let me know if I need to make a formal request for this. I'm cc'ing the F/O, so they are aware, given the email chain below.

Thanks and we are all excited to see these efforts come to fruition!

The timeline (inclusive of production) is to go live 1 April with radio ads, and 15 April with OOH (billboard) and print (military times). We'll assess ROI as we go to determine if we want to expand the locations beyond the above 3 concentration areas. Good start given our M&A may take a hit to cover part of NETCs upcoming $20 mil cut.

- We are developing a series of videos of Sailors who are discussing their reasons for joining the Reserves upon leaving active duty. Our plans are to place these videos on CHINFO's website and Facebook so we have a way to hit current Sailors (vice our external audience). We'll also put the content on YouTube which has surpassed Google as the number one search engine for young adults.

- While coordinating with your staff, in particularly, CAPT (b) [REDACTED], there was a request for more digital marketing to the following target audiences: Sailors who are 6 months from separating from AC and Sailors who separated during FY18 but have yet to affiliate with the Reserves. Once the videos mentioned above (filming starts on 25March2019) are complete, we plan on sending links via email to this target audience.

- I would like to EMAIL this target audience a letter from you requesting they affiliate with the reserve component, highlighting benefits, service, etc. We will generate a draft for you if you approve this initiative. This target audience is a departure from the 3-5 year post separation sailor due to lack of previous ROI. Last year I sent out (in addition to CNP) direct mailers to those who are at the point of 3 -5 years AC separation totaling over 87K mailers, direct and electronic, yielding only a 1% response rate and no contracts).

I briefed CNP on NRC PS Centralization transformation during last week's EDB. He was pleased with the initiative and asked about ratings we are having difficulty filling. The following Policy items were also briefed:

- MANMED re-write. We were able to include certain items that directly impact the Prior Service mission. 1) Separation Physicals will now be valid for 36 months past the official date of separation (date on DD-214). 2) VA Disability Compensation is no longer an automatic trip to the VA. 3) Special duty physicals (aviation, dive, SEAL, etc.) can be accepted in lieu of a MEPS physical. 4) language that states that being fit to separate from active duty means that you are fit to continue to serve; thus, AC separation means that you are fit to affiliate with the RC. These changes will also make the Navy the go-to service to join for ISTs and OSVETs.

- Military Service Obligation. Working with N13R and CAPT (b) on the staffing of an official request to create a RC obligation as part of a sailors initial AC MSO, similar to an Academy/NROTC contract. RC will hold the hammer as to whether the obligation is served active or inactive.

- IRR Muster: NRC is working on a survey to send out to those who register for the next IRR Muster to see if mobilization potential is a deciding factor for affiliation with the RC. Unofficial polling during FY18 IRR Musters indicated two major barriers to affiliation, medical and mobilization. If this is substantiated we would like you to entertain a mobilization deferment for RC affiliation from the IRR, akin to AC to RC deferments. There are 3-4 IRR musters that will occur this FY. The only confirmed date that we have is 23-24 March in Alameda, CA. The other potential locations are Seattle, WA; Atlanta, GA and Pittsburg, PA.

- VTU-To-Pay initiative: With the release of ALNAVRESFOR 020-18 message, our Prior Service Directorate has teamed up with the ECMs, NOSC, and PS Service Recruiters to place eligible VTU Sailors into paid billets. This addresses both ES and vacant billets. This is a win-win because these Sailors who are HYT can now compete for advancement as long as they are not HYT for the next higher paygrade and makes them eligible for drill-pay, AT/E-AT, etc.; the ECMS can fill billets and end-strength quotas that are not being filled by initial Reserve affiliations; and finally, allows NRC to count these Sailors toward the Prior Service goal due to quota and billet consumption.

- Fleet Engagement: We have recently placed RC Benefit Advisors in PSD Norfolk (or Transactional Support Center - Norfolk) and on the USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75) to better educate separating sailors to RC benefits/service. We are also looking into having MNCC's Reserve affiliation queries routed directly to our Cyber Space Civilian Prior Service team. This will streamline the hand-off process to the closest Prior Service Detachment for face to face engagement.

Finally, I would like to ensure you have visibility on an individual who is working his way back into the active RC. Mr. (b) (b) (6) separated as an active LCDR SEAL 3 years ago. He then ran for and won election as the Governor of Missouri, where he served as governor until last year when he resigned due to some political scandals. We were made aware from CNP that VPOTUS wanted him to affiliate as a drilling reservist and activate IOT participate in certain programs that he would be "by name-requested" by VPOTUS. (b) (6) is currently in S-2 status and needed to complete accessions protocol again, to include medical. He has met all these protocols and we see no impediments to his return to an active status in the RC. The SEAL community was not interested re-affiliating him, so we pursued other communities. Today he decided that becoming a General Unrestricted Line Officer would be the most expeditious route to affiliation. We plan to submit the necessary paperwork to PERS-911 next week for their processing.

His political difficulties notwithstanding, our public affairs posture has been passive. If we are queried about him, the recommendation has been to emphasize that he has been a reservist since his separation (before his troubles), we are merely taking administrative action to change his reserve status from the IRR to the drilling reserves.

Standing by for any questions you may have. I look forward to seeing you next week at NFOSES.

Admiral McCollum, Admiral Luscher,

I want to give both of you visibility on an individual who is working his way back into the drilling reserves. Mr. (b) (6) separated as an active LCDR SEAL 3 years ago. He then ran for and won election as the Governor of Missouri. He served as governor until last year when he resigned due to some political scandals.

This year we were made aware from CNP that VPOTUS wanted him to affiliate as a drilling reservist and activate to participate in certain programs that he would be "by name-requested" for. (b) (6) is currently in S-2 status and needed to complete accessions protocol again, to include medical.

Since the SEAL community was not interested re-affiliating we pursued other communities for him to join. Today he decided that becoming a General Unrestricted Line Officer would be the easiest and most expeditious route for him to become an officer once more. As he has passed his medical, we now see no impediments to his return. We plan to submit the necessary paperwork to PERS-911 next week for their processing.

His political difficulties notwithstanding, our public affairs posture has been passive. If we are queried about him, the recommendation has been to emphasize that he has been a reservist since his separation (before his troubles), we are merely taking administrative action to change his reserve status from the IRR to the drilling reserves.

Sir,

Thank you. I look forward to talking.

Tuesday 0930 is one of the very few times that I can't move things to be available.

I could make any time work Tuesday after 1030 Central.
Wednesday I can make anything work from early until 1530 Central.
Thursday I can make anything work between 1030 and 1430 Central.

I greatly appreciate you offering to talk, especially being OCONUS.
I'd very much welcome having your Exec join us as well.

Thank you again and Very Respectfully,

\(b\) \(6\)

I want to add in my kudos. LT (b) (6) is a superstar. This is the best VIP case I've experienced in the more than 150 I've handled. I'm not even exaggerating. He's accomplished in two weeks what can take six months or more in some cases. If I could I'd bring him to HQ to be my VIP coordinator. Not even joking.

Subject: NRC Weekly Update- 15 FEB

Boss,

I am covering down through the 21st while RDML McLane is OCONUS for CFMCC. Team continues to fight the good recruiting fight.

I am sure you saw RDML McLane's email for "Sea Stories" support at NFOSES this year. The email was well received and we will be setting up a recording studio to capture those stories. The CNO made a request to show these and/or other "Sea Stories" when returning from break for "motivation". We are coordinating and will make this happen.

- FNSV. Still standing by for ruling. Our staff-level gouge is that they don't have the contractors in place yet, so the execution timeline may be delayed. In the meantime, we are updating our PRIDE system with a NASIS component that will allow us to query every Future Sailor's SF-86 to determine if they answered a Foreign Nexus question in the affirmative. By next week we should know which FSs will "pop" for FNSV screening, allowing us the ability to roll-in/roll-out as appropriate. We continue to ask for a 45-day grace period, regardless of when the screening goes live, so we can avoid shipping variance problems. On the LPR front, thank you to you and your staff for providing an additional 1K LPR eligible jobs (2nd Trimester) in REV 3 of the goaling letter. Between that, the GEM, and the probable FNSV changes, we should be able to ship most LPRs more expeditiously.

- Citadel Shield/Solid Curtain. We will be conducting enterprise-wide OPREP training to shore up the deficient areas identified in the exercise.

- Nuke Shipping. Attached is our quarterly Nuclear recruiting update to Naval Reactors. The EXECSUM is that the recent changes and relaxations are helping us on the shipping mission. We are also working other initiatives and expanding our Marketing and Advertising with a $2M campaign targeted to the Nuclear Field. We may not meet the mission in February, it will be close, but the gap has been closed considerably with our recent moves.

- SEN Blackburn staff visit. One of his representatives will visit Millington to meet with NPC, NRC and others on 19 FEB. I will be taking the visit with our normal command brief, etc. Emphasis will be on community outreach and how we are hitting the Tennessee markets through Blue Angels shows and other events.

Have a great weekend.

I want to add in my kudos. LT (b) (6) is a superstar. This is the best VIP case I've experienced in the more than 150 I've handled. I'm not even exaggerating. He's accomplished in two weeks what can take six months or more in some cases. If I could I'd bring him to HQ to be my VIP coordinator. Not even joking.

Boss,

I am covering down through the 21st while RDML Mclane is OCONUS for CFMCC. Team continues to fight the good recruiting fight.

I am sure you saw RDML McLane's email for "Sea Stories" support at NFOSES this year. The email was well received and we will be setting up a recording studio to capture those stories. The CNO made a request to show these and/or other "Sea Stories" when returning from break for "motivation". We are coordinating and will make this happen.

- FNSV. Still standing by for ruling. Our staff-level gouge is that they don't have the contractors in place yet, so the execution timeline may be delayed. In the meantime, we are updating our PRIDE system with a NASIS component that will allow us to query every Future Sailor's SF-86 to determine if they answered a Foreign Nexus question in the affirmative. By next week we should know which FSs will "pop" for FNSV screening, allowing us the ability to roll-in/roll-out as appropriate. We continue to ask for a 45-day grace period, regardless of when the screening goes live, so we can avoid shipping variance problems. On the LPR front, thank you to you and your staff for providing an additional 1K LPR eligible jobs (2nd Trimester) in REV 3 of the goaling letter. Between that, the GEM, and the probable FNSV changes, we should be able to ship most LPRs more expeditiously.

- Citadel Shield/Solid Curtain. We will be conducting enterprise-wide OPREP training to shore up the deficient areas identified in the exercise.

- Nuke Shipping. Attached is our quarterly Nuclear recruiting update to Naval Reactors. The EXECSUM is that the recent changes and relaxations are helping us on the shipping mission. We are also working other initiatives and expanding our Marketing and Advertising with a $2M campaign targeted to the Nuclear Field. We may not meet the mission in February, it will be close, but the gap has been closed considerably with our recent moves.

- SEN Blackburn staff visit. One of his representatives will visit Millington to meet with NPC, NRC and others on 19 FEB. I will be taking the visit with our normal command brief, etc. Emphasis will be on community outreach and how we are hitting the Tennessee markets through Blue Angels shows and other events.

Have a great weekend.

I'm remiss in not giving you a heads-up about one of our high-visibility applicants that we're sending to St. Louis MEPS this Friday.

Mr. (b) (6) is the former governor of Missouri until he resigned in scandal last year. (There was a lot of politics involved, but you can read his Wikipedia page). Before that he was a decorated SEAL.

Long story short, VPOTUS wants (b) (6) to come work for him in D.C. but in a military capacity. He's currently an S2 reservist looking to come back into the drilling reserves. We have to do a full accessions package on him with medical, etc. We've been working closely with PERS-9 and PERS-35 to make everything happen. The whole chain of command from SECDEF on down are supportive of him coming in so we're just trying to make this as painless and quick as possible. Your guys in St. Louis have been really great in setting up a red-carpet physical this Friday at 0800 so we're on-track for that.

As with most VIPs, he has most of his stuff but not all. The SFC/CMO in St. Louis have been asking for documentation that he may or may not have all of (lasik records, etc.) We are doing everything we can to get any and all documentation we can for him. I can tell you personally that, short of mad cow disease, RDML McLane is standing by to approve any needed waivers!

Again, we appreciate all the support thus far. If you see any issues we are standing by to jump in.

Sir,

Enclosures one and two are in your Electronic Service Record (ESR). If you do not have access to that I can call PERS-313 and see what they can do for us.

Enclosure three is something that we have already; naturally I can attach your fitreps to the package as we forward it up if you would prefer it be done that way.

Enclosure four is one that we can get generated for you.

On a separate note, MEPS will gladly take your medical record as it is, but would like a brief statement that explains:

(b) (6)

Both of these items can be on the same form as long as you sign it and as long as it has specific dates for each event.

(b) (6)

Just let me know and I'll handle it however you prefer.

V/R,

LT (b) (6)

Please see the attached form required for redesignation by BUPERS-35.

I filled the template with as much information as is known to me, but also attached a blank copy and the standard BUPERS-35 guidance on the matter.

I am still working the medical piece, but it is possible to get you to the MTF on Friday. I will have more to follow, but I will probably not have an update until Monday.

John,

You're got the same one I do, or stated another way, I don't have anything newer than last week's. What I'm basing my 'change of language' comment on is the CDR (b) (6), ASN M&RA email summarizing the Wed meeting (incl below) in which she characterized FNSV testing to start 15 Feb vice actual implementation. From what I can tell, they haven't gotten any of the contractors in place yet, much less begun training.

Subject: Latest on FNSV

Good morning,

Below is a summary of the GO/FO/SES meeting held Wednesday.

The purpose of vetting reform, overall, is to identify foreign preference/foreign influence across all personnel (mil and civ) entering the DoD

Focus right now is on mil accessions

Main need right now is for the Services to supply the personnel requested (7 Navy, 6 Marine Corps) for 24 months; can be via $$

Personnel do not need to be CI analysts, just analysts who can be trained

The personnel requested should be centralized to access databases, run new protocol together, and standardize operations

DoD will hold to a 15FEB date to get resources in place and at least start testing the process

Attached is a simplified process flow chart

NBIB is working to improve their IT quickly to scrub SF-86s and drop to FNSV cell (may be ready 15 FEB)

Until the NBIB IT is up, Service LNOs will need to do this

Applies to all mil accessions from court injunction on, except those with completed Tier 3s

OSD would prefer to NOT have personnel go farther than A school until FNSV is complete

OSD expects NO or LOW risk feedback to be visible to Service LNOs on landing zone in no more than 14 days from SF-86 receipt in FNSV cell.

No mention of days at NBIB before getting to FNSV cell

Also, there appears to be no way for Services to know that their applicant is in the FNSV cell via the landing zone until after that 14 day period

If an applicant is NO or LOW risk, applicant will appear on landing zone as green and "protocol complete."

If an applicant is LOW risk, separate FNSV report will be sent to DoDCAF.

If applicant flags HIGH risk, applicant will appear on landing zone as red and "protocol pending"

NBIB will then conduct CI assessment

CI assessment and FNSV report will be sent to DoDCAF

DoDCAF will then determine un/favorable MSSR ahead of completion of BI/Tier 3

If unfavorable, applicant will appear on landing zone as red and "protocol complete"

DoD estimates no more than 90 days to make MSSR determination

Still up to MilDeps on whether to ship if applicant is red, but Services will not know WHY applicant is red; MilDeps assume the risk

Admin Seps DoDI states applicants must know why they were separated, so Services not knowing why applicant is red may be an issue.

Next steps:

DTM out for formal coord soon

Augmentees on board

Testing begins 15FEB

I will be following up with OSD Accessions on the "*" items. Please let me know if you have any additional questions.

Boss, Juliet, John,

LPRs (UPDATED): (b) (5)

Nuclear Field Recruiting. (NO CHANGE) The new business rules that Naval Reactors and I agreed to had an immediate impact on Nuke shipping. We came very close to meeting shipping and new contracts, a good 100 over our FY18 avg. With the $38k enlistment bonus approved 1 FEB, I'm expecting a solid but close February. (b) (5)

Mr. (b) (6) (UPDATE): Now ENS (b) (6) was commissioned last week in his office by the recruiter. He wants to do a much larger "official" swearing-in and has invited the President and/or former SECDEF Mattis to do the honors. Next month he will begin drilling at NOSC D.C.

(b) (6) (UPDATE) (b) (6) (b) (5)

Mr. (b) (6) (NO CHANGE): Mr. (b) (6) (b) (5)

(b) (5)

(b) (5)

Audit (NO CHANGE): IRT DoD IG audit, we received clarification from Mr. (b) (6) that we are not under audit, but they are seeking some recruiting data to assist in their audit of Arleigh Burke Destroyer readiness. They were interested in obtaining information such as Navy's recruiting goals, number of recruits by year broken down by rating. We are working on compiling that information for them.

CRM (NO CHANGE): 5 of 5 contractors requested reported to their NTAGs to begin work. PMW-240 cleared final hurdle (checkpoint 5) to connect NALTS to CRM today. Expecting a signed IATT from NAO in next couple days. They agreed no need to holdup connection work on the Boundary Connection Request (BCR) for connecting. so the program office can now proceed with that work.

I'm standing by for any questions you may have.

Good morning,

Below is a summary of the GO/FO/SES meeting held Wednesday.

The purpose of vetting reform, overall, is to identify foreign preference/foreign influence across all personnel (mil and civ) entering the DoD

Focus right now is on mil accessions

Main need right now is for the Services to supply the personnel requested (7 Navy, 6 Marine Corps) for 24 months; can be via $$

Personnel do not need to be CI analysts, just analysts who can be trained

The personnel requested should be centralized to access databases, run new protocol together, and standardize operations

DoD will hold to a 15FEB date to get resources in place and at least start testing the process

Attached is a simplified process flow chart

NBIB is working to improve their IT quickly to scrub SF-86s and drop to FNSV cell (may be ready 15 FEB)

Until the NBIB IT is up, Service LNOs will need to do this

Applies to all mil accessions from court injunction on, except those with completed Tier 3s

OSD would prefer to NOT have personnel go farther than A school until FNSV is complete

OSD expects NO or LOW risk feedback to be visible to Service LNOs on landing zone in no more than 14 days from SF-86 receipt in FNSV cell.

No mention of days at NBIB before getting to FNSV cell

Also, there appears to be no way for Services to know that their applicant is in the FNSV cell via the landing zone until after that 14 day period

If an applicant is NO or LOW risk, applicant will appear on landing zone as green and "protocol complete."

If an applicant is LOW risk, separate FNSV report will be sent to DoDCAF.

If applicant flags HIGH risk, applicant will appear on landing zone as red and "protocol pending"

NBIB will then conduct CI assessment

CI assessment and FNSV report will be sent to DoDCAF

DoDCAF will then determine un/favorable MSSR ahead of completion of BI/Tier 3

If unfavorable, applicant will appear on landing zone as red and "protocol complete"

DoD estimates no more than 90 days to make MSSR determination

Still up to MilDeps on whether to ship if applicant is red, but Services will not know WHY applicant is red; MilDeps assume the risk

Admin Seps DoDI states applicants must know why they were separated, so Services not knowing why applicant is red may be an issue.

Next steps:

Boss, Juliet, John,

LPRs (UPDATED): (b) (5)

(b) (5)

Nuclear Field Recruiting. (NO CHANGE) The new business rules that Naval Reactors and I agreed to had an immediate impact on Nuke shipping. We came very close to meeting shipping and new contracts, a good 100 over our FY18 avg. With the $38k enlistment bonus approved 1 FEB, I'm expecting a solid but close February. (b) (5)

Mr. (b) (6) (UPDATE): Now ENS (b) (6) was commissioned last week in his office by the recruiter. He wants to do a much larger "official" swearing-in and has invited the President and/or former SECDEF Mattis to do the honors. Next month he will begin drilling at NOSC D.C.

(b) (6) (UPDATE) (b) (6) (b) (5)

Mr. (b) (6) (NO CHANGE): Mr. (b) (6) is still in the medical review process and needs to produce several documents for a full evaluation. While not trying to influence the process, I would say that his current health would not warrant a waiver. Will however continue until we have a full evaluation.

School Access (NO CHANGE) We have reduced our non-compliant schools list to just 10 in Massachusetts and Connecticut which have been non-compliant. We are working with them at the O-6 level. The joint SECDEF/SECDED memo to all schools would be a great benefit for future operations.

(b) (5)

Audit (NO CHANGE): IRT DoD IG audit, we received clarification from Mr. (b) (6) that we are not under audit, but they are seeking some recruiting data to assist in their audit of Arleigh Burke Destroyer readiness. They were interested in obtaining information such as Navy's recruiting goals, number of recruits by year broken down by rating. We are working on compiling that information for them.

CRM (NO CHANGE): 5 of 5 contractors requested reported to their NTAGs to begin work. PMW-240 cleared final hurdle (checkpoint 5) to connect NALTS and PRIDE to CRM today. Expecting a signed IATT from NAO in next couple days. They agreed no need to holdup connection work on the Boundary Connection Request (BCR) for connecting. so the program office can now proceed with that work.

I'm standing by for any questions you may have.

I'm looping in my officer recruiter, LT (b) (6) on the game plan for (b) (6). LT (b) (6) is confirming with the applicant that you'll meet (b) (6) him at 0800 at the front door to MEPS. From there, he will go with your MED NCOIC to kick off the physical. As he's over 40, (b) (6) will be sure to fast the night before in prep for the over 40 physical.

In case he needs it, LT (b) (6) has passed the applicant your gov cell number.

If there's any other info you need us to pass or that your folks require, please let us know. Thanks again, (b) (6) !

Boss, Juliet, John,

LPRs (UPDATED): (b) (5)

Nuclear Field Recruiting. (NO CHANGE) The new business rules that Naval Reactors and I agreed to had an immediate impact on Nuke shipping. We came very close to meeting shipping and new contracts, a good 100 over our FY18 avg. With the $38k enlistment bonus approved 1 FEB, I'm expecting a solid but close February. (b) (5)

Mr. (b) (6) (UPDATE): Now ENS (b) (6) was commissioned last week in his office by the recruiter. He wants to do a much larger "official" swearing-in and has invited the President and/or former SECDEF Mattis to do the honors. Next month he will begin drilling at NOSC D.C.

(b) (6) (UPDATE) (b) (6) (b) (5)

Mr. (b) (6) (NO CHANGE): Mr. (b) (6) is still in the medical review process and needs to produce several documents for a full evaluation. While not trying to influence the process, I would say that his current health would not warrant a waiver. Will however continue until we have a full evaluation.

School Access (NO CHANGE) We have reduced our non-compliant schools list to just 10 in Massachusetts and Connecticut which have been non-compliant. We are working with them at the O-6 level. The joint SECDEF/SECDED memo to all schools would be a great benefit for future operations.

(b) (5)

Audit (NO CHANGE): IRT DoD IG audit, we received clarification from Mr. (b) (6) that we are not under audit, but they are seeking some recruiting data to assist in their audit of Arleigh Burke Destroyer readiness. They were interested in obtaining information such as Navy's recruiting goals, number of recruits by year broken down by rating. We are working on compiling that information for them.

CRM (NO CHANGE): 5 of 5 contractors requested reported to their NTAGs to begin work. PMW-240 cleared final hurdle (checkpoint 5) to connect NALTS and PRIDE to CRM today. Expecting a signed IATT from NAO in next couple days. They agreed no need to holdup connection work on the Boundary Connection Request (BCR) for connecting. so the program office can now proceed with that work.

I'm standing by for any questions you may have.

LPRs (UPDATED): (b) (5)

[REDACTED]

Nuclear Field Recruiting. (NO CHANGE) The new business rules that Naval Reactors and I agreed to had an immediate impact on Nuke shipping. We came very close to meeting shipping and new contracts, a good 100 over our FY18 avg. With the $38k enlistment bonus approved 1 FEB, I'm expecting a solid but close February. (b) (5)

[REDACTED]

Mr. (b) (6) (UPDATE): Now ENS (b) (6) was commissioned last week in his office by the recruiter. He wants to do a much larger "official" swearing-in and has invited the President and/or former SECDEF Mattis to do the honors. Next month he will begin drilling at NOSC D.C.

(b) (6) (UPDATE) (b) (6) (b) (5)

[REDACTED]

Mr. (b) (6) (NO CHANGE): Mr. (b) (6) is still in the medical review process and needs to produce several documents for a full evaluation. While not trying to influence the process, I would say that his current health would not warrant a waiver. Will however continue until we have a full evaluation.

School Access (NO CHANGE) We have reduced our non-compliant schools list to just 10 in Massachusetts and Connecticut which have been non-compliant. We are working with them at the O-6 level. The joint SECDEF/SECDEED memo to all schools would be a great benefit for future operations.

(b) (5)

[REDACTED]

Audit (NO CHANGE): IRT DoD IG audit, we received clarification from Mr. (b) (6) that we are not under audit, but they are seeking some recruiting data to assist in their audit of Arleigh Burke Destroyer readiness. They were interested in obtaining information such as Navy's recruiting goals, number of recruits by year broken down by rating. We are working on compiling that information for them.

CRM (NO CHANGE): 5 of 5 contractors requested reported to their NTAGs to begin work. PMW-240 cleared final hurdle (checkpoint 5) to connect NALTS and PRIDE to CRM today. Expecting a signed IATT from NAO in next couple days. They agreed no need to holdup connection work on the Boundary Connection Request (BCR) for connecting. so the program office can now proceed with that work.

I'm standing by for any questions you may have.

Sir,

Please see the attached form required for redesignation by BUPERS-35.

I filled the template with as much information as is known to me, but also attached a blank copy and the standard BUPERS-35 guidance on the matter.

I am still working the medical piece, but it is possible to get you to the MTF on Friday. I will have more to follow, but I will probably not have an update until Monday.

Thank you (b) (6), whatever we can do to reasonably accommodate this request we should try for. If you need assistance in getting the physical scheduled we can help from here. Everyone from the Admiral to BUMED himself can weigh in on our behalf. Lots of tools in this toolbox.

Forwarded. Please provide the redesignation information and applicable IWC template to LCDR (b) (6) (b) (6) to request redesignation to the Reserve Component Intel community.

For redesignation to 18X5, you would need to submit a redesignation package per BUPERSINST 1001.39F, utilizing the attached Information Warfare Community (IWC) template. The medical process can be lengthy for officers in the Individual Ready Reserve/Inactive Standby List (S2 Status) and should be complete with 95% of the paperwork required by recruiting prior to submitting a redesignation package. Resignation packages received too early in the SELRES affiliation process will be disapproved as the effective date for community training requirements is the date of redesignation. Officers approved for redesignation are required to be assigned to an IWC unit.

Applications must be forwarded to NAVPERSCOM (PERS-911) via the appropriate Naval Information Force Region Officer-in-Charge. To apply, you must meet the minimum eligibility requirements outlined in MILPERSMAN 1212-010 and 1212-030. NIFR Region OICs are in the redesignation process for an endorsement for the following purposes: Verify basic eligibility, SSBI/pre-screening eligibility; Substantive assessment of the candidate's potential for success and general competitiveness for promotion; and ensure each candidate meets minimum physical fitness and height/weight standards, has not failed to select in their current grade, and is not likely to fail to select before the completion of Change of Designator (2 X FOS will not be approved).

Once PERS-911 receives, they forward to the SELRES Officer Community Manager who will look at the package from a RC perspective. If there are no manpower issues, the application is forwarded to the IWC Officer Community Manager for an approval/disapproval recommendation. Once an endorsement is provided, it is forwarded back to PERS-911 for processing. RC redesignation is continuous year round and does not culminate in a formalized board action. Once the candidate completes the steps above with the appropriate endorsements, the package can be forwarded to PERS-911 for a decision.

The NIFR Region North OIC, CDR (b) (6) can facilitate the required NIFR Region OIC endorsement for your package. He may be reached at (b) (6) ext. (b) (6), (b) (6) @navy.mil.

(b) (6) (UPDATE) (b) (6) met with our recruiter this morning. (b) (5)

Mr. (b) (6) (NO CHANGE): Mr. (b) (6) is still in the medical review process and needs to produce several documents for a full evaluation. While not trying to influence the process, I would say that his current health would not warrant a waiver. Will however continue until we have a full evaluation.

School Access (NO CHANGE) We have reduced our non-compliant schools list to just 10 in Massachusetts and Connecticut which have been non-compliant. We are working with them at the O-6 level. The joint SECDEF/SECDED memo to all schools would be a great benefit for future operations.

(b) (5)

Audit (NO CHANGE): IRT DoD IG audit, we received clarification from Mr. (b) (6)  that we are not under audit, but they are seeking some recruiting data to assist in their audit of Arleigh Burke Destroyer readiness. They were interested in obtaining information such as Navy's recruiting goals, number of recruits by year broken down by rating. We are working on compiling that information for them.

CRM (UPDATE): 5 of 5 contractors requested reported to their NTAGs to begin work. PMW-240 cleared final hurdle (checkpoint 5) to connect NALTS and PRIDE to CRM today. Expecting a signed IATT from NAO in next couple days. They agreed no need to holdup connection work on the Boundary Connection Request (BCR) for connecting. so the program office can now proceed with that work.

I'm standing by for any questions you may have.

Nuclear Field Recruiting. (NEW) New rules for pre-screening and adjudications are in effect and we are shipping at a much greater throughput. I would like to highlight, though, that for throughput in the FD Supply Chain, I have had to prioritize Nukes over future reservists in order to maximize our nuke numbers at the cost of under shipping NATs. Anticipate that the $38k enlistment bonus will be approved for 1 FEB.

Mr. (b) (6) (UPDATE): Mr. (b) (6) scroll was approved. We are preparing his final select letter. Once Mr. (b) (6) accepts his final selection, we can send him his Commissioning Documents. This will include a date for commissioning. Mr. (b) (6) is also seeking to have a say in which NOSC he affiliates with, which is not the normal procedures but we're working through it with him. That will occur after his commissioning.

(b) (6) (NEW) Former SEAL and former Missouri governor (b) (6) resigned the governorship last year due to a scandal. He is seeking to re-affiliate in the reserves. Our initial research shows that he would have to meet full accessions standards. I'll call him tomorrow for initial coord and then hand-off to local reserve officer recruiter.

Mr. (b) (6) (NO CHANGE): Mr. (b) (6) is still in the medical review process and needs to produce several documents for a full evaluation. While not trying to influence the process, I would say that his current health would not warrant a waiver. Will however continue until we have a full evaluation.

CRM (NO CHANGE): 4 of 5 contractors requested reported to their NTAGs to begin work. The contractor, Accenture, is searching for replacement for the 5th. Our interfaces are still on track for delivery late February.

I'm standing by for any questions you may have.

CNP,

I spoke with (b) (6) yesterday and introduced him to the Reserve Officer recruiter, LT (b) (6) who will be working with him.

LT (b) (6) background:

- #1 Division Officer in NRD St Louis
- NRD STL Nuke Recruiter of the Year in FY 18
- 32 YO SWO. Most recent fleet billet was DH on an MCM staff in Bahrain
- Also recruits all AC/RC GENOFF
- CANREC in STL since Sep 16

Both LT (b) (6) and my calls with Mr (b) (6) were pleasant, straightforward. He was appreciative of our help. He told us that VPOTUS had asked him to come work for him on a project and suggested he do it in a Navy capacity. He said that he desired to reaffiliate as a SEAL or reserve Intel officer. Already know the answer from the SEAL community, so we will dissuade him from that. Given our experience with Mr. (b) (6) I feel that reserve Intel may be a tall order for him as well but will work thru that.

LT (b) (6) has scheduled a face to face meeting with him on Monday afternoon to start the paperwork. We will work with PERS-9 to staff his application through the process efficiently.

Will keep you updated.

CNP,

I spoke with (b) (6) yesterday and introduced him to the Reserve Officer recruiter, LT (b) (6) who will be working with him.

LT (b) (6) background:

- #1 Division Officer in NRD St Louis
- NRD STL Nuke Recruiter of the Year in FY 18
- 32 YO SWO. Most recent fleet billet was DH on an MCM staff in Bahrain
- Also recruits all AC/RC GENOFF
- CANREC in STL since Sep 16

Both LT (b) (6) and my calls with Mr (b) (6) were pleasant, straightforward. He was appreciative of our help. He told us that VPOTUS had asked him to come work for him on a project and suggested he do it in a Navy capacity. He said that he desired to reaffiliate as a SEAL or reserve Intel officer. Already know the answer from the SEAL community, so we will dissuade him from that. Given our experience with Mr. (b) (6) I feel that reserve Intel may be a tall order for him as well but will work thru that.

LT (b) (6) has scheduled a face to face meeting with him on Monday afternoon to start the paperwork. We will work with PERS-9 to staff his application through the process efficiently.

Will keep you updated.

This will include a date for commissioning. Mr. (b) (6) is also seeking to have a say in which NOSC he affiliates with, which is not the normal procedures but we're working through it with him. That will occur after his commissioning.

(b) (6) (NEW) Former SEAL and former Missouri governor (b) (6) resigned the governorship last year due to a scandal. He is seeking to re-affiliate in the reserves. Our initial research shows that he would have to meet full accessions standards. I'll call him tomorrow for initial coord and then hand-off to local reserve officer recruiter.

Mr. (b) (NO CHANGE): Mr. (b) is still in the medical review process and needs to produce several documents for a full evaluation. While not trying to influence the process, I would say that his current health would not warrant a waiver. Will however continue until we have a full evaluation.

School Access (UPDATED) We have reduced our non-compliant schools list to just 10 in Massachusetts and Connecticut which have been non-compliant. We are working with them at the O-6 level. The joint SECDEF/SECDED memo to all schools would be a great benefit for future operations.

(b) (5)

Audit (NO CHANGE): IRT DoD IG audit, we received clarification from Mr. (b) (6) that we are not under audit, but they are seeking some recruiting data to assist in their audit of Arleigh Burke Destroyer readiness. They were interested in obtaining information such as Navy's recruiting goals, number of recruits by year broken down by rating. We are working on compiling that information for them.

CRM (NO CHANGE): 4 of 5 contractors requested reported to their NTAGs to begin work. The contractor, Accenture, is searching for replacement for the 5th. Our interfaces are still on track for delivery late February.

Second - as we look at the difficulty of this year's mission, I wanted to commend you and your team on your innovative approach to getting things done. Instead of sitting back and waiting for add'l manning - your RC initiative was the right proactive call to get things moving. Additionally, your use of levers and other innovative mitigation strategies is paying off (SWARM in particularly). Thanks for looking at unconventional ways to get things done.

Finally, concur with NF priority over the LPRs. Shipping coordination with RTC / NSTC (Rusty, while Mike's away at CAPSTONE) remains critically important. If we reach an impasse, elevate to me early so we can keep things moving...

Keep up the great work...

Boss, Juliet, John,

LPRs (UPDATED): (b) (5)

Nuclear Field Recruiting. (NEW) New rules for pre-screening and adjudications are in effect and we are shipping at a much greater throughput. I would like to highlight, though, that for throughput in the FD Supply Chain, I have had to prioritize Nukes over future reservists in order to maximize our nuke numbers at the cost of under shipping NATs. Anticipate that the $38k enlistment bonus will be approved for 1 FEB.

Mr. (b) (6) (UPDATE): Mr. (b) (6) scroll was approved. We are preparing his final select letter. Once Mr. (b) (6) accepts his final selection, we can send him his Commissioning Documents. This will include a date for commissioning. Mr. (b) (6) is also seeking to have a say in which NOSC he affiliates with, which is not the normal procedures but we're working through it with him. That will occur after his commissioning.

(b) (6) (NEW) Former SEAL and former Missouri governor (b) (6) resigned the governorship last year due to a scandal. He is seeking to re-affiliate in the reserves. Our initial research shows that he would have to meet full accessions standards. I'll call him tomorrow for initial coord and then hand-off to local reserve officer recruiter.

Mr. (b) (6) (NO CHANGE): Mr. (b) (6) is still in the medical review process and needs to produce several documents for a full evaluation. While not trying to influence the process, I would say that his current health would not warrant a waiver. Will however continue until we have a full evaluation.

School Access (UPDATED) We have reduced our non-compliant schools list to just 10 in Massachusetts and Connecticut which have been non-compliant. We are working with them at the O-6 level. The joint SECDEF/SECDED memo to all schools would be a great benefit for future operations.

(b) (5)

Audit (NO CHANGE): IRT DoD IG audit, we received clarification from Mr. (b) (6) that we are not under audit, but they are seeking some recruiting data to assist in their audit of Arleigh Burke Destroyer readiness. They were interested in obtaining information such as Navy's recruiting goals, number of recruits by year broken down by rating. We are working on compiling that information for them.

CRM (NO CHANGE): 4 of 5 contractors requested reported to their NTAGs to begin work. The contractor, Accenture, is searching for replacement for the 5th. Our interfaces are still on track for delivery late February.

I'm standing by for any questions you may have.

Brendan,

I spoke with Vice Chief, VADM (Ret) Kernan, and then (b) (6) (b) (6) on Saturday. Some updates on (b) (6) status that I think will make waivers unnecessary, and he understands SEALs not an option. Also some interest from VPOTUS office, possible BNR coming in.

Give me a call sometime today when convenient. Thanks.

CNP,

We did an in-depth analysis on this high-vis case. There are several issues here that complicate the case for his re-commissioning. After discussing with (b) (6), OSD legal, and my team these are the main points of fact:

(b) (6) was indicted and arrested for the felony privacy charges. During that time, other charges were brought to the St. Louis Prosecutor including sexual harassment, unlawful imprisonment, and two campaign finance violations involving his use of charity email rosters for personal and/or political use. All felonies.

-The charges regarding the privacy violations were dropped due to insufficient evidence. However the campaign finance violations were still being processed, when a supposed deal was worked out for him to resign the Governorship in return for dropping prosecution. We don't have sufficient data on where those charges were in processing, i.e. whether he was formally charged or not.

-Right now, he would require a major misconduct waiver for the indictment/arrest for the felony privacy charges. A full investigation would need to be undertaken and all applicable documents would need to be reviewed, which may be a difficult and lengthy process given the high political nature of the case and its disposition. He would also be asked to provide documentation on the campaign finance violations. If he was charged then he would need waivers for those as well.

-Speaking with CAPT (b) (6), were he a regular Prior Service re-entry applicant, he would not meet criteria for re-entry to the SEAL community given his age and unfavorable promotion likelihood. The fact that he is well-known as a former governor constitutes a security risk added on top. Informally, the SEALS told us they won't take him. Thus, he'd probably would need to apply for another URL or staff officer position.

My recommendation: As waiver authority in this situation, I would be disinclined to grant a major misconduct waiver for anyone with an indictment such as his based on what we know now. I have granted a few felony waivers so far, but these were way down on the scale of offense - taking a relative's care out for a joy ride, getting in a fight at school (in some places those are felonies) etc. The sexual nature of the charges are not in line with our Navy Core Values, and the campaign finance violations not only do not inspire trust and confidence in his integrity but also represent a real risk from a security clearance perspective. If he applied we would, of course, do our due diligence as we would with other applicants. However, if the subsequent investigations confirm what we know now, I cannot see a situation in which I could sign any waivers in good conscience.

Email back to RADM Kernan attached.

I'm digging into this deeply and will get back to you with my assessment soonest.

Brendan,

(b) (6), USD (I), asked Navy to look into a request from (b) (6), a former SEAL, to re-join the Navy.

If you check out his bio on Wikipedia, pretty impressive military career, left as an O-4, no shortage of combat experience, Bronze Star and Purple Heart. Went on to be Republican Governor of Missouri, was charged for a number of felony invasion of privacy actions related to an affair prior to becoming Governor, the charges were later dropped, he then resigned as Governor. There's more to the story - read his history on Wikipedia - the section that explains the circumstances surrounding the resignation.

Looking to avoid a repeat of recent history. Would ask that you take a quick look at the article and talk it over with (b) (6), cc'd above, about desire to bring back in the Navy.

I have an opinion, and am feeling no pressure to do anything but what we think is the right thing for the Navy - so that's the lens I'm asking you to look through - just as we would for any potential candidate.

Thanks.
